

Stuyvesant is Bought By Albany Resident Who Will Take Hotel July 1

C. Hamilton Laurie, Former Assistant Manager of Ten Eyck Hotel, Purchases Controlling Interest of Hotel Corporation.

BUILT IN 1910

Stuyvesant Hotel Was for Many Years One of Leading Hostelties in Hudson Valley.

Controlling interest in the Ulster County Hotel Corporation, owner of the Hotel Stuyvesant, was taken over Wednesday afternoon by C. Hamilton Laurie of Albany. Mr. Laurie is a hotel man of many years experience and will take personal charge of the management of the Stuyvesant. He will move to Kingston with his family about July 1 and it is understood that he will make a number of improvements to the hotel.

Mr. Laurie was formerly assistant manager of the Hotel Ten Eyck in Albany. Philip Elting represented the Ulster County Hotel Corporation in the transaction. Hon. Charles W. Walton appeared for the Kingston Trust Company and Mr. Laurie was represented by Frank A. K. Boland of New York city.

The transfer was made Wednesday afternoon following negotiations which have been under way for some time. Prior to the transfer of the controlling interest in the corporation to Mr. Laurie a meeting was held by the corporation of which William H. Van Etten is president; Philip Elting, vice president, and George E. Hilson, secretary and manager of the hotel.

The Stuyvesant Hotel for many years was one of the leading hotels of the Hudson Valley and was built in 1910 by the Ulster County Hotel Corporation of which James S. Winne was president. Prior to the erection of the Stuyvesant Mr. Winne had been one of the owners of the Eagle Hotel on Main street. Until his death Mr. Winne continued to be president of the corporation which was organized with a capital of $75,000 and in which many local people were financially interested.

In later years the control of the hotel was in the hands of Samuel Gray, John B. Phillips, Harry H. Trim and Mr. Van Etten.

The Hotel Stuyvesant erected in 1910 is a modern four story brick building located at Fair and John streets adjacent to the business section. It has 100 rooms.

At the conclusion of the transaction Mr. Laurie left immediately for Albany and at the hotel this morning it was stated he would be in Kingston the latter part of the week.

While Mr. Laurie is now in control of the hotel it is stated that he will take active charge of the hotel management on July first.

Health Officers Charged

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., June 23 (AP)—Health officers who make no effort to enforce milk regulations "are negligent and subject to suit for loss of life or health resulting from milk-borne diseases," Walter D. Tiedeman, chief of the bureau of health sanitation in the State Department of Health declared at the conference of state health officers which closed here today. Speaking at last night before a meeting of State Sanitary Officers Association, Tiedeman advocated "legal action" to force compliance with milk health regulations in assailing the "dealer who may have influence or think he has influence or who is just bull-headed in persistently violating regulations."

10 More Persons Arrested

Camden, N. J., June 25 (AP)—Police arrested ten more persons for disorderly conduct today in a strike at the Victor division of the RCA Manufacturing Company. No serious trouble was reported. Strike leaders announced a determination to keep the picketing orderly and recruited "policemen" from their own ranks to direct the crowd. Ropes put up by Camden police kept the crowd back from the plant entrances and several thousand workers entered. Today's arrests brought the total to 52. Three were injured in clashes yesterday.

Charles Jeannette is Busy

Old Forge, N. Y., June 25 (AP)—Charles Jeannette, 39-year-old Civil War veteran, was busy at his modest little cottage here today, preparing to marry Mrs. Ella Blanche Manning, attractive 34-year-old widow, on Sunday. When he was 34 years old, the Civil War veteran said that he would be married "before I'm 100," adding, "after 100 a man is too old to marry." Jeannette's first wife died after 37 years of married life and his second, whom he married in Montreal in January, 1935, died two months later.

Air Crash Blame Flied

Washington, June 25 (AP)—The Senate air safety committee today attributed the Kirtland, Mo., fatal air crash of May 6, 1935, in which Senator Alvin J. Harbo and four others died, to the failure of three ground crew members to check the engine. The report also said that the Kansas City Radio Range, three rotating light beams on the last 20 miles southeast of Kirtland, and the radio station at that point, failed.

State Civil Service To Hold Convention Here

The annual convention of the Civil Service Association of the State of New York and the Civil Service Forum, composed of New York city civil service employees, will be held in Kingston on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Friday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock a special train will arrive at the West Shore station from New York carrying a large number of delegates to the convention. The executive committee will meet Friday afternoon at the headquarters in the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Saturday morning's session will be held in the Municipal Auditorium at 9:30 o'clock when Mayor C. J. Heiselman will welcome the delegates to Kingston.

Saturday night a dinner and entertainment for the delegates will be held at Golden Rule Inn, and Sunday morning the delegates will be taken for an auto trip over the Minerva trail and around the Ashokan reservoir, and an old fashioned picnic will be held at the Kenosia Lake Club.

John Dellay Taken Into Federal Custody On Wednesday Night

John Dellay, 50, Rosendale realtor, who transacted most of the property transfers for Father Divine in Ulster county, was arrested Wednesday night at 9:30 on a bench warrant issued by Judge John C. Knox, of the southern district U. S. court, New York city.

Dellay was arrested in front of his home at Rosendale by U. S. Deputy Marshal John J. Henebery of East Kingston and Deputy Sheriff Charles McCullough, of Abram F. Molyneux's staff, as he stepped off of a Shortline bus on its way from New York to Kingston.

At the Ulster county jail, where Dellay was held in custody until early this morning, Deputy Henebery said he was not prepared to give any information concerning the arrest of Father Divine's real estate agent, and Deputy Sheriff McCullough said he acted only on instructions from Sheriff Molyneux to assist the federal agent in making the arrest.

The bench warrant issued for Dellay's arrest, however, stated that "an indictment had been returned by a federal grand jury in New York against John Dellay and others (et al.) for having on the first day of June, 1935, and on other dates as more specifically mentioned in the indictment at the southern district of New York and within the jurisdiction of the said court, unlawfully possession of a 500-gallon still which was not registered according to law, etc., and for having conspired to do so."

Dellay said he was ignorant of why the federal authorities wanted him. This morning Deputy Henebery left with Dellay on an early train to New York to take him before the federal authorities.

Mrs. Decker Taking Driver's Test Hurt As Auto Turned Over

Mrs. Bertha Decker of 4 Tompkins street and Inspector Frank Prior of Wilkwyck avenue, of the Motor Vehicle Bureau, were injured but not seriously in an accident on Mary's avenue, near the Benedictine Hospital this morning.

Mrs. Decker was taking a test to obtain her driver's license and Inspector Prior was giving the test. On the hill near the hospital he asked Mrs. Decker to turn the car around on the hill. She placed the car in reverse and then evidently becoming nervous stepped on the gas and the car shot off the road and down the embankment turning over two or three times, and landing upright on its wheels.

Inspector Prior was injured about the back and cut on the hands and his wrist sprained. He said that he would complete giving the test today and then would return to his home. Mrs. Decker was treated for minor abrasions at the hospital by the nurse and returned to her home. The car she was using in taking her test was a 1935 Chevrolet owned by August Hof and Harry Decker, and had been driven 400 miles. The car was slightly damaged but it was possible to drive the car back onto the road and under its own power the car was driven to the Chevrolet garage station on O'Neil street.

George Bader, 72, an inmate of the Social Relief Society home at Cottekill, hanged himself in the slaughter house of the place some time between 9 o'clock Wednesday night and 7:10 this morning.

The body of the aged German, who had been complaining of ill health, was found by the superintendent of the home, Carl Neunobel, who notified Coroner Elston DuBois of New Paltz. The coroner gave a verdict of "suicide by hanging."

Coroner DuBois turned the body over to Undertaker N. D. J. Murphy of Kingston, who was to send it to New York for cremation.

"Bader often spoke of committing suicide," Superintendent Neunobel told Coroner DuBois. Deputy Sheriff Clayton Vredenburg and Corporal Norm Baker and Trooper Andy Kilne of the state police who investigated. "He was in ill health and had been to hospitals in Kingston and New York five or six times. He said only the other day he was through with doctors and the next time would take care of himself."

Neunobel Finds Body

Neunobel went to the slaughter house this morning when friends of Bader told him the old man had not appeared for breakfast. "I thought he might be in the shed, as he often worked there, and I even had an idea he might have taken his life. When I opened the door there he was, just as you see him."

Bader, according to conditions evident when the police arrived, tied a thin rope around his neck and stood on a stool, found near his head, almost touched the floor. The coroner said he had been dead about eight hours prior to discovery. This was verified when an inspection of his room revealed that the bed was not disturbed, indicating he had not slept in it last night.

Bader enrolled at the Cottekill home in August, 1931, and since that time resided there. He was a butcher by trade and worked in that capacity for the institution. For the past two years he suffered from gastritis and a heart condition. He felt depressed when medical science failed to relieve him and according to the superintendent often expressed the wish that he would die.

In 1890 Bader left Germany, where he was born on December 3, 1864, and came to the United States. He became a citizen of this country in 1900. Bader was married, but his wife died some time ago. Her maiden name was not known to Superintendent Neunobel.

A paper among the effects of Bader, found in his room, left the address of a brother, R. Bader, 21 Elser street, Stuttgart, Germany. Whether the brother is living is uncertain. Other notes directed where insurance papers and his will could be found, in a cigar box in his dresser.

Socialists are Attacked

Bucharest, June 25 (AP)—Iron guard students, leading anti-Semitic agitation, attacked Socialist headquarters today, smashed windows and fired many shots. Police reported at least 20 persons were injured. Minister of the Interior Ion Inculceta called a conference with police officials, an indication interpreted to mean the national government has become genuinely concerned over the recurring riots. Reports from the provinces indicated anti-Semitic and Nazi agitation was spreading.

Young Democrats Ready To Present National Bid For Lehman to Compete

Petition Signed by Leaders of 25 State Delegations to Democratic National Convention; Has Appointment With Governor.

STANDS FIRM

Governor Lehman Has No Comment to Make When Told of Petition.

Philadelphia, June 25 (AP)—The movement to draft Herbert H. Lehman for a third term as New York governor reached a climax today when the New York Young Democratic Club prepared to lay before him a demand from party leaders throughout the country that he accept renomination to help President Roosevelt to carry the state.

The demand was in the form of a petition which was put into circulation late yesterday and within a few hours was signed by leaders of 25 state delegations to the Democratic national convention.

Edward Gluck, president of the club, said he had an appointment with the governor for today to present the petition to him. By the time it was presented, he said, he expected to have the signatures of delegates from every state in the Union.

"We started this campaign as the result of the speech before the club of Federal Judge John C. Knox urging the members to assert themselves to see to it that the governor runs again," he said.

"We have been lining up delegates from every state of the Union in order to dramatize to the governor that his re-election as head of the Empire state is a national as well as a state event in a presidential year."

Has No Comment

Governor Lehman was informed in advance that the petition was being circulated but declined to comment other than to say he was standing on his statement made several weeks ago that he would retire from office at the end of the year when his term expires.

Among the early signers of the petition were several men prominent in national affairs. These included: Senator William C. McAdoo, chairman of the California delegation; Governor Henry Horner, chairman of the Illinois delegation; Governor Clyde Tingley, chairman of the New Mexico delegation; and Governor Bibb Graves of Alabama.

Continues Policy

Postmaster General James A. Farley, chairman of the New York state and the national Democratic committee, continued his policy of hands-off, neither opposing nor supporting the movement.

Both he and President Roosevelt have made it clear, however, that they want Lehman to run again. The petition which the Young Democrats circulated read as follows:

"We endorse the resolution adopted by the New York Young Democratic Club, Inc., June 18, 1936, urging Governor Lehman to consent to his renomination, as such consent would be of direct assistance in carrying New York for the Democratic party and the re-election of Franklin D. Roosevelt as President of the United States and also because of Governor Lehman's personal work and great executive ability."

Continues in State

The draft Lehman movement also continued in New York state under the direction of the non-partisan citizens' committee, headed by Maurice P. Davidson, former Fusion party leader in New York city. County committees were being organized throughout the state to urge the governor to run again.

Meanwhile, there was a great deal of speculation among the state delegates as to the reasons for Lieutenant Governor M. William Bry's sudden decision to come to Philadelphia. He left Albany hurriedly yesterday after announcing he had received a telephone call from Charles McKernan, Onondaga county Democratic leader, asking him to come immediately.

He declined to comment on reports he had been called to the convention city to discuss plans to help reconcile his old friend, Alfred E. Smith, to the New Deal, or that he was coming here to confer with leaders about his place on the state ticket this fall.

Convention Program At Philadelphia Today

Philadelphia, June 25 (AP)—Here is the Democratic convention's program today: (Time eastern daylight saving.)

11:30 a. m.—Rules committee vote on motion to abrogate two-thirds nominating rule.

12 noon—Convention called to order by Senator Joseph T. Robinson, permanent chairman.

1 p. m.—Rules committee reports with recommended action on two-thirds rule. Convention debate and decision follows.

Indefinite hour—Platform committee receives and acts on platform prepared by sub-committee (if completed).

8 p. m.—Night session to receive platform committee report and vote upon its adoption.

Amendment Retards Framing of Platform At Philadelphia Today

Philadelphia, June 25 (AP)—Framing of a Democratic platform pledging Federal power to deal with social and economic problems of nationwide scope was delayed today by a dispute over the ticklish issue of a constitutional amendment.

An all night session of the Platform Subcommittee failed to produce a final agreement. Tried committee members recessed for a few hours of sleep before resuming their deliberations.

Despite a tight-lipped silence about what had taken place during the long night session, it was learned there was a prolonged discussion of a plan to structure a constitutional amendment, if necessary, to give the Federal government power to handle national problems.

An agreement to include some such plank was reported, but committee members were described as in disagreement over the phraseology.

Wagner's Forenoon

As the weary negotiators filed out of the hotel room where they had worked behind closed doors all night, Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, forecast that the committee would report to the convention tonight, as scheduled.

"There is no trouble at all," Wagner said. "We got along fine."

Earlier, he had put his head out of the door to say the platform would be the best ever presented to a Democratic convention.

He refused, however, to discuss the deliberations which had held the committee in session for hours without reaching an agreement.

Members of the subcommittee to agree on the platform suggested by President Roosevelt was somewhat of a surprise in view of the make-up. It was composed almost entirely of New Deal sympathizers.

Wagner read the proposed platform of about 2,000 words to the Philadelphia, June 24 (AP)—Anxiety lest bitterness carry over into the platform debate tonight, or hinder the drive for unanimity in renominating Roosevelt and Garner, had some administration men frowning.

Also contributing to their difficulties were hard feelings among some Minnesotans about how their factional dispute over representation was settled, the prospect of a minority platform report from Washington state advocating the Townsend old age pension plan, and resentment in the South Carolina delegation over the presence of negroes at the convention.

Joseph Wolf, although he lost his place as Minnesota's committeeman under a credentials committee decision, decided not to make a floor contest. Lasting into the late hours last night, this controversy delayed the election of Senator Joe Robinson to the permanent chairmanship until this afternoon because the roll of the convention could not be completed.

But Robinson disregarded the technicality of election and made his permanent chairman speech last night. From it observers drew the conclusion that a militant upholding of the New Deal means more to Roosevelt leaders than obtaining unanimity.

Robinson said the Supreme Court had delayed recovery and demanded reversal of the invalidation of New York's minimum wage law.

"Oh blind and impartial justice, what blunders are committed in thy name!" he exclaimed.

Blows For Landon

The speaker also launched blows at Governor Alf M. Landon and recalled the Roosevelt administration record with praise.

Watching the reactions to the speech many delegates expected the New Deal campaign from now on to be directed partly against interpretations placed on the constitution by the conservative majority of the highest court.

Hours-long conferences by the platform drafters brought an final word on how constitutional questions would be handled. That no amendment would be adopted seemed definite, but a pledge to make use of Federal power to deal with nationwide social problems took form.

Arrangement of G.O.P.

As for the rest, most delegates expected the policy statements to follow the pattern set by the speakers so far—an arrangement of the 12 years of Republican rule before Roosevelt's 1933 review declaring his policies relieved the nation from the depths of depression and a general promise of more of the same.

New York, Massachusetts and Indiana Surprise Many by Siding With Southern Bloc of States in Two-Fisted Fight.

PLAN IS JUMBLED

Status of Platform is Uncertain and Mix-up Today Reshuffles all Arrangements at Philadelphia.

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, June 25 (AP)—Overriding southern objections, the Roosevelt rules committee recommended abrogation of the old two-thirds rule for the Democratic convention today, but debate was delayed until evening pending the drafting of dissenting reports.

While the platform makers struggled to settle troubles of their own over the conference table, the delegates unanimously accepted reports from the committees on credentials and permanent organization, and then adjourned.

Whether the platform would be ready finally, and an attempt made to dispose of that along with the rules dispute tonight, remained uncertain. It had been planned to renominate President Roosevelt tomorrow afternoon and Vice President Garner Saturday afternoon—but the unlooked-for mix-up today reshuffled all arrangements.

While minority members of the rules committee went ahead preparing a minority report, convention officials said they had some hope the dissenters might be talked out of presenting it.

New York Springs Surprise

To the surprise of many, New York as well as Massachusetts and Indiana sided with a bloc of southern states against making future nominations by a simple majority.

Many of the delegates were paying first attention to progress on the platform.

The full platform committee was called to meet at 3 p. m. eastern daylight time, at which time they hoped to act on recommendations of a subcommittee which worked all night.

Adoption of the credentials report enabled the convention to complete the organization by electing Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas permanent chairman. It did so unanimously.

Failure of the platform subcommittee to complete its labors in an all night session evidenced troubles there. The return of Senator Carter Glass of Virginia to the city, against doctor's orders, caused a flurry of speculation about his taking a hand on the monetary plank after all.

Old Timer Aroused

Friends quickly scotched it, saying the old timer had been aroused by reports of his "taking a walk" along with Alfred E. Smith when he left abruptly earlier in the week, and came back to show he stood with the party.

Curiosity was aroused by rumors that Smith might appear personally against the New Deal after all. He had left New York but acquaintances did not expect him to come here.

Barkley's arrival finally fell at 14 minutes after noon. Dr. George Emerson Barnes, moderator of the Philadelphia pressitory, offered the invocation. He prayed that the laws of the legislators speak truly the will of the people, and that the courts properly interpret the laws.

Then, with empty seats on every side, the convention received and adopted without a division or debate the credentials committee report, presented by Representative Grandfield of Massachusetts.

Similarly, it elected Robinson permanent chairman, and he took over the reel from Barkley.

Again the auditorium doors were opened to the public, but many seats for delegates as well as in the galleries remained vacant.

Standing silent tributes were paid to the memory of the late Speaker Henry T. Rainey of Illinois, and Senator Thomas Walsh of Montana.

Since the rules committee was not ready to report, the convention adjourned at 12:45 p. m. eastern daylight time tonight.

New Deal Content

New Deal leaders were confident the 1936-year-old requirement for putting a candidate in the presidential race would be scrapped in favor of a majority rule.

Several substitutes were to be offered before a vote. Senator Dennis Chaffey of New Mexico, opened debate by denouncing the south as "the only section opposing abrogation."

"If we are to make a change should it be done when the people are present?" Chaffey asked.

This was a good question to ask in Jackson, Cleveland, Wilson and Roosevelt, an echo that was heard at a loud line.

Representative John Rankin of Mississippi, interrupted to observe it was "the same pernicious press favoring abrogation of the rule that

Old Hurley School Graduation Exercises

Hurley, June 21.—The graduation exercises of Old Hurley school were held in the parlors of the Hurley Reformed Church, Friday evening, June 19.

The "Class of '36" consisted of eight members, six of whom not only graduated with high class averages but made a complete record of passing all their Regents' preliminary subjects with many marks of 90 per cent and over.

The members of the class are: Carl Huthstainer, valedictorian; Lois Merker, salutatorian; Dorothy Stagg, class historian; Margaret Winchell, class prophet; Lester Stagg, reader of the class will; Mary McSpirt, reader of the class poem; Margaret Brown, who delivered an oration on "Communism"; and Gilbert Lockwood, an oration on "Inventions of Today."

The class motto was "Perseverance," a motto very fitting for a group which has put forth such a splendid effort as the class of '36.

James Winchell, seventh grade, was master of ceremonies; Peter Palen, seventh grade, was stage manager; and Elbert Loughran, seventh grade, presented the class with a gift of class pins, donated by the school from funds earned during the year. The ushers were: Robert Brown, George Malcolm, Peter Palen, Elbert Loughran.

The program was as follows:

Music—Dance of the Happy Spirits
Invocation—Rev. Chester Chilton
Introduction of the Graduating Class—James Winchell
Salutatory Address—Lois Merker
Song—The Church in the Wildwood
School Chorus
Exercise—Going to the Seashore... Grades 1 and 2
Playlet—Dolly's Graduation... Grades 3 and 4
Instrumental Quartet—Home on the Range—Violet, Eva, James and Mrs. Dunbar Oration—Communism... Margaret Brown
Oration—Inventions of Today... Gilbert Lockwood
Song—Red River Valley... Male Quartet
Class History... Dorothy Stagg
Class Prophecy... Margaret Winchell
Reading of the Class Poem... Mary McSpirt
Reading of the Class Will... Lester Stagg
Auctioning of the Class... George Phalen and Helpers
Song... Dunbar Quartet
Reading of Primary Averages... Mrs. Wehlf
Reading of Upper Grade Averages... Mrs. Belote
Presentation of Good Citizenship Prizes... Mrs. Belote
Presentation of Gifts to Graduating Class... Elbert Loughran
Presentation of Diplomas... Roger H. Loughran, Trustee
Valedictory Address... Carl Huthstainer
Class Song—There Is a Schoolhouse in the Town... Class of 36
The musical numbers, given by Violet, Eva, James and Mrs. Dunbar, were greatly enjoyed. Also the cowboy song, by George Huthstainer and assistants, received loud applause.

Many a laugh was given an appreciative audience by the clever little jokes on classmates as presented by the class historian, class prophet, and reader of the class will.

Mr. Loughran, in presenting diplomas to the class, told them that the work which they were facing was in a state of transition and their success or failure depended on the strength and courage with which they might train themselves to possess to a greater and greater extent.

He told of two boys, both of whom were called upon to face great obstacles. The one failed because of the lack of strong, sterling qualities. The other, in face of even greater difficulties, made his life a blessing to himself and those about him because his education had developed in him qualities of strength, cheerfulness, and perseverance which no unkindly fate could counteract.

The good citizenship prizes were won by Beverly Stingle, Albert Lahl, Anna Pilz and Walter Pilz.

The perfect attendance prizes were won by Katherine Brown, Edward Slater and Florence Snyder. Peter Palen received honorable mention, being absent only one day.

The primary averages as read by Mrs. Wehlf are as follows:

Grade 1—Barbara Hardenbergh, Ruth E. Palen, Nelson Walker, Clara Walker, and Mary Brock.

Grade 2—Beverly Stingle, Winifred Schoeps, Harrison Forde, Susana Slater, Marie Pilz, and Richard Baker.

Grade 3—George Phalen, Walter Ten Eyck, Earle Terwilliger, Albert Lahl, Florence Snyder, and Helen Scully.

Fourth grade honor roll, based on tests given by the teachers, consists of Albert A. Loughran, Raymond Snyder, Douglas Lockwood, Charles Schoeps, and Robert Zeunder.

The following pupils passed the yearly examination sent out by the State Education Department for grade 5-7, inclusive, with averages of 85 to 97 per cent: Rita Lockwood, Bertha Rosa, Betty Skerritt, George Bates, Verna Lahl, Robert Merker, Walter Pilz, Catherine Stagle, Robert Brown, Harriet Lockwood, Elbert Loughran, Peter Palen, John Rosa, Harry Skerritt, and James Winchell.

The seventh grade made a 100 per cent passing record in Regents' geography. The marks are as follows: James Winchell, 98; Peter Palen, 94; Robert Brown, 90; John Rosa, 87; George Malcolm, 87; Harry Skerritt, 92; Harriet Lockwood, 93; Elbert Loughran, 99.

The school wishes to present sincere thanks to the pastor and consistency of Hurley church for the use of the church parlors; to Mr. Chilton, personally, for his capable assistance; to Mr. Hardenbergh, for the use of the attractive porch furniture for the stage setting; to Mrs. Dunbar and family; George Huthstainer and Mrs. Claude Palen for their assistance with the music; to Mrs. Harry Skerritt for her help with the small children, and to Mrs. Wehlf, primary teacher, who took complete charge of the decoration of the room as well as contributing the primary playlets to the class program.

Honorable mention is given to George Bates, who had the most complete Current-Events social studies notebook.

It is interesting to note that the class of '32 of Hurley school, consisting of seven members, graduated from Kingston High School this year; that one member of that class, Cecile Thompson, was vice-president of her class and received an award for services rendered.

The class of '32 from Hurley was the first organized class here and that year marked the beginning of formal graduation day programs.

Amendment Retards Farming of Platform

committee. Then the group went over the draft phrase by phrase and almost word by word.

Debate Over Phrases

One committee member emerged during the evening, saying the whole debate was over phraseology. He said half an hour was spent on the Civil Service plank alone. Frequently during the long deliberations, hotel attendants carried trays and tables of sandwiches and refreshments to the committee members. Most of them stayed in the room throughout the night.

There were many issues fraught with potential trouble besides the constitutional question. They included the farm plank, monopoly, money and foreign affairs.

While the subcommittee worked, there were indications that a plank suggesting a constitutional amendment even conditionally might run into conflict in the full committee.

Governor George C. Peery, Virginia's member of the committee, said a "strong sentiment against a constitutional amendment plank had developed" in the parent body.

There was little doubt, however, that barring sudden last minute changes the platform would call for liberal interpretation of the Constitution to permit the Federal government to deal with interstate problems. Such a platform would make a campaign issue in view of the emphasis on states' rights in the Republican platform, and would find the two parties tending to reverse their historic positions.

Protection of States

The Democrats, however, were expected to stand for protection of right of states to handle their own affairs in purely local matters.

Leaders hoped the full platform committee would present a united report to the convention.

But there seemed little chance in view of the decision of the Washington State delegation to fight for a Townsend old age pension plank and carry the battle to the floor of the convention with a minority report if necessary.

The delegation last night chose E. V. Hurley to serve on the fight after Senator Lewis Schwellenbach had refused to serve under such instructions.

Aside from the Townsend plan, there was little reason to expect any disagreement, at least in the subcommittee. Besides Wagner, ardent New Dealer, the committee included four other senators who have consistently voted for New Deal legislation, and two officials of the administration.

Suggestions Submitted

A host of suggestions were submitted during five hours of public hearing yesterday, most controversial of which was one from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, for a constitutional amendment to prevent the Supreme Court from declaring laws unconstitutional without a two-thirds vote.

All indications from the committee room were that the platform would be one of the shortest major party programs in history. It was to deal with broad principles, chiefly expounding the policies already established by the New Deal, without going into detail.

Best information available was that it would: Declare the party had maintained the soundest money in the world, and pledge to keep it.

Point to the New Deal farm record, and promise a continued soil conservation program, balanced production to meet the demands of foreign and domestic markets, and expansion of the domestic market through higher urban wages.

Strongly endorse the reciprocal trade program.

Promise strict neutrality and elimination of war profits.

Fledge strict enforcement of anti-monopoly laws.

Promise extension of the Civil Service.

Stand for peaceful settlement of international disputes without mentioning the World Court or the League of Nations.

"Brother Smith Needs More Prayer," Is View Of Negro at Convention

Philadelphia, June 25 (AP)—The walk-out of South Carolina's Senator Ellison D. Smith on the Democratic national convention yesterday when a negro offered the invocation was interpreted by the minister today as "simply an indication that Brother Smith needs more prayer."

Smith, a cotton planter who has served 27 years in the senate, said he would walk out "whenever a negro has a part" in the convention proceedings.

The Rev. Marshall Shepard, pastor of the Baptist Church here who offered the prayer, said he was "not bitter" but thought the incident "unfortunate."

Officials said it was the first time a negro ever had offered prayer at a Democratic convention. Even as Smith and one or two others from the South Carolina delegation strode toward the door, the minister finished his prayer and the band swung into the strains of "Dixie."

The combination brought wry comments from other southern delegates but only Smith voiced his resentment publicly.

The outburst was the culmination of a train of circumstances reaching back even before the convention. Smith had been out of harmony with many New Deal policies and when he came to the convention belatedly after attending the funeral of Senator Fletcher of Florida, he found his delegate badge—and the right to a seat in the convention—temporarily assigned to another.

As he left the convention floor Smith declared he was "through" but later he said he would stay at least through today to vote against abrogation of the two-thirds rule.

Enlarging upon his attitude, Smith said "there isn't a man in America that has more regard for the negro in his place than I have." But he said the situation in the south "before and since the Civil War makes it impossible for the south to recognize and accept the negro as an equal political factor." "Political equality means social equality and social equality means inter-marriage and that means the mongrelization of the American race," he asserted.

Al Smith Secluded In Some Quiet Place

New York, June 25 (AP)—Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, who created much speculation when he quietly left town yesterday, has not come to Philadelphia for the Democratic convention and has no intention of doing so, persons close to him said today.

He was in seclusion at some undisclosed place near New York.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 25, 1936

DANGEROUS JOBS AND PLACES

The accident figures of the National Safety Council for the year 1935 provide something of a jolt to the average person's ideas of dangerous places and occupations. As everyone probably knows by this time, automobile traffic takes the highest toll of human life. It accounted for 37,000 out of the total 100,000 accidental deaths in 1935.

The second most perilous place after the highway is the home. Its accident mortality last year was 31,500. People at home fall down stairs and out of windows, drown in bathtubs, cut and burn themselves fatally. Home accidents also cripple permanently 140,000 persons and injure 4,460,000. The fatal occupational accidents, with total deaths of 16,500, have their surprises for the reader. Farming is the most perilous occupation, with trade and service industries second. Mining and similar work kill only about a third as many workers as farming.

One thing stands out clearly from all these distressing figures. Carelessness is the chief hazard. That is why locations and occupations which ought to be the safest are the most dangerous. The ones that are recognized as dangerous are safeguarded.

BOLSHEVISM CLEANS UP

Russia has always been regarded as a rather dirty country. Cleanliness and sanitation in the sense of Western Europe were almost unknown. Now that is being changed with a vengeance. And naturally women are doing it. Recently 3,000 engineers' wives met in Moscow to plan their campaign. "Every kitchen maid must learn to rule the state," Lenin had declared, and now they were getting ready to start, ruling Russia as a woman rules her home. They propose to provide "culture" for millions of Russian working women, and they hold that cleanliness is next to culture. So—The women are taking charge of the workers' dormitories and barracks, refusing to let anyone enter with dirty boots and preparing to "exterminate the vermin." They will teach the workers to dress neatly, to wash before meals, to brush their teeth, and so on. All Russia, it may be assumed, will soon have a bath and a housecleaning. Whether you like it or not, Communism, or whatever they have in Russia, seems lately to be doing that country some good.

NOISE RECORDS.

The most recent improvement added to our civilization by technical science is the "demonstrator." It is an "applause machine," used to measure the power and persuasiveness of the noises generated at public meetings. It was first used at the Republican national convention in Cleveland. The usefulness of such a device can be readily appreciated, in a country whose people are so given to creating noise in public places, and who tend to rate the merits of any institution or cause by the volume of sound produced in its behalf.

That Republican gathering did very well, pushing the noise indicator on the dial up to $5 in a possible 100. But the Democrats might do better. By equipping their hall with mechanical noise-making machines, they could bust that demonstrator.

SLIM COLLECTION

June 15 was debt-collection day for Uncle Sam, and collections were even heavier than usual. The little Baltic nations, representing the last stand of international credit in Europe, have started allying. Lithuania and Estonia joined the big powers in "banking." Only Italy failed to get its payment as usual. There was a sticker of hope, though, from one of the big debtors—France. The new French ministry sent this note to our state department: "The French government has not overlooked the difficulties involved in the question of debts, and hopes that they may be overcome. Accordingly, having in view the communications made by preceding governments, it desires on its part to make it absolutely plain that it is prepared to seek, as soon as circumstances permit, a settlement of its debt on bases acceptable to both countries." That is not very promising, but courteous. Something might come of it.

Our own government will have to turn practical sooner or later, as private debtors do. Demanding everything agreed upon in past settlements, we get nothing, not even interest. There will have to be a new compromise, with drastic reductions. Then the debtors might pay, partly for the satisfaction of wiping the slate clean and partly in hope of our financing future wars or recoveries for them. Otherwise we may expect nothing.

INFECTED TEETH

Some years ago when physicians learned that infected teeth caused many cases of rheumatism there was a tendency on the part of the public to make fun about it because it was also that that infected teeth were causing various other ailments—stomach and intestinal trouble, inflammation of the gall bladder, and various eye inflammations.

More recently the fact that teeth cause rheumatism is no longer doubted and the first thought of the patient himself is to get the condition of his teeth and of his tonsils.

Now it must be admitted that all rheumatism is not caused by infected teeth and tonsils, but as, in medicine, the commonest causes of ailments are always searched for first, the teeth should be examined first by a competent dentist and the help of the X-ray examination.

Research physicians and dentists tell us that by the time rheumatic patients are examined the cause in about one-half of the total number is infected teeth. If these infected teeth are removed improvement follows, with of course the use of heat and the help of massage and electrical treatment.

However, as all forms of arthritis or rheumatism are not due to infected teeth the question arises as to whether infected teeth should be removed anyway even if these particular teeth are very useful in chewing food and thus preventing indigestion.

I believe your dentist and your physician will tell you that good circulation of good (pure) blood is absolutely necessary to attain or retain good health. Infected teeth not only poison the blood, but the circulation of the blood itself becomes poor around the affected joint. Infected teeth thus prevent progress toward recovery in all forms of rheumatism.

In fact as the whole general health of the individual is lowered by the poison from the infected teeth it is only good sense to have them removed even if they have nothing to do with causing the rheumatism itself.

Thus while the removal of infected teeth may not relieve your rheumatism, for your general health and to prevent aggravation of rheumatism there is no question but that they should be removed. New or artificial teeth will provide teeth for chewing purposes.

Use of the Name "Geoph"

"Geoph" was the pseudonym of the House of Bannock, whose members were British soldiers from King George I to Queen Victoria. In 1201 the Electress Sophia of Hanover was proclaimed successor to the throne of Great Britain, being the granddaughter of King James I. She died on June 5, 1714, and a few weeks before her death, Queen Anne, last sovereign of the House of Stuart, Sophia's aunt, George I. therefore succeeded as King George I. On the death of Queen Victoria in 1901 the name of the dynasty changed to House of Saxe-Coburg and the family name to Windsor, because of the marriage of Queen Victoria to Prince Albert. In 1917 both the dynastic name and the patriarchic were changed to Windsor.

MURDER TONIGHT

BY LAURENCE W. MEYNIE

And there was something in the nature of the noise which had attracted his attention that made him want to investigate it.

Quietly he slipped across the room and pushed the door open. It led into a well-proportioned, old-fashioned billiard-room where a tall, good-looking young man in riding habit stood half way between door and table, ostensibly chalking a cue.

He looked up when Hynton entered and nodded.

"Having a game?" the Inspector asked.

"I've just been knocking the pills about."

"Lienumerone," Hynton thought; the click of ivory is curiously penetrating and unmistakable, and he was prepared to take an oath that no billiard balls had run on that table since he had started his lunch in the next room half in an hour before.

On the other hand, a young man comes into the billiard room to see if there is a game going; he hears a voice raised in the next room; he decides to postpone his solitary game and lays an inquisitive ear against the panel of the door. Hynton wondered.

"I'll give you a game if you like, Mr. Shipley," he said.

"Right-O," Dale answered. "I see you've got my name pat."

"Oh Sergeant White has pointed out everyone in the place to me by now."

"And I suppose we're all suspect?" "More or less. Spot or plain?"

"I'll take spot. I can tell you a lot of people who didn't do it."

"I've no doubt. If you could only tell me all the people who didn't do it the process of elimination would be complete. Shall we string for break?"

"Right-O. You play much of this game?"

"Not enough to keep in good practice, I suppose you do?"

"I play a pretty decent stick as a rule," Dale admitted. He was a young man to whom such admissions came easily. Nature had made him fairly good at most sports, and imagination had turned him into a master; but there was no imagination about Inspector Hynton's proficiency at the game. It is a curious fact in life that ability at chess and at billiards often run together, and for all his talk about playing "a decent stick" Dale Shipley was struggling along in the fifties when Hynton ran out with an unfinished twenty-seven.

Young Shipley did not like being beaten at anything; he was not a good loser and he put his cue away with only a pretense at good grace.

"By the way," Hynton asked casually, "do you agree with Captain Reeves' estimate of Mr. Burdett?"

"What about his being a dirty damned old g—?" Shipley broke off abruptly, he had walked into the trap before he had noticed it. "I heard him shouting out something in the next room," he concluded awkwardly.

"So it seems," Hynton concurred pleasantly. "I was just wondering whether you thought the same."

The young man's awkwardness increased. "It's nothing to do with me," he said shortly, and rattling his cue into its place he stalked out of the room.

Dale left the Hoops in a bad temper—not an uncommon frame of mind with that rather too good-looking young gentleman. He was annoyed at having been so ignominiously bested at billiards, still a jolt annoyed at having walked into the Inspector's child-like booby trap. Easy enough, of course, to make pretense that he had innocently and unintentionally overheard the conversation in the next room; but impossible, nevertheless, to get rid of the substratum of uncomfortable knowledge. The Inspector knew, and Dale knew that the Inspector knew, that what overheard there had been was not accidental.

"What the hell does it matter, anyway," he tried to reassure himself crossly as he swung round the corner of Fielden Lane towards his cottage.

"Dale."

He turned sharply and looked into the big meadow on his right. The short winter afternoon was already beginning to end, and in the still grey light which streamed from the path attended by a red setter in transports of ridiculous excitement. His first instinct was to curse under his breath.

The figure was that of Nancy Featherstone, and although Dale had no particular reason for wanting to avoid Nancy, he on the other hand had no particular reason for wanting to talk with anyone.

Writing Ink Often Made

From Oak Tree Galls Nut

Ordinary black writing ink is often made from the galls out of oak trees. These galls are really the homes of little insects. For the purpose of making ink, says a writer in the Washington Star, they are taken from the trees, soaked in water, and later treated with a kind of iron which makes the extract of the galls turn jet black in color.

The peculiar acid found in the bark of oak trees, called tannic acid, is also used for ink. When iron is added to this acid it also turns black.

But neither the insect gall nor the bark ink is practical for fountain pens, where the ink must be thin to be useful. So for fountain pens, inks are made from coal tar. The ink on typewriter ribbons is also made from coal tar, mixed with glycerin so that it retains its moisture.

Red ink is a solution of one of three red dyes—magenta, carmine or eosin—in water or ammonia.

India ink is perhaps the most imperishable of inks. It is made by combining lamp black with a kind of gelatin. Water is added when it is used. India ink is similar to that wonderful ink used by the ancient Egyptians and Chinese on manuscripts still unadorned after centuries.

"Invisible" inks are made of substances which require heat, as chloride of cobalt does, to change their color. Or sometimes they are made of lead, which must be exposed to a certain gas to become visible.

"Street of Lost Bread" Is Near Belfry in Ghent

The Belfry in Ghent is probably the most historical in this region, and its great bell is known as "The Heart of Ghent." The belfry is 375 feet in height and was erected in 1183 and played an important part in the city's history.

In the early days the feudal lords allowed the burghers to ring the bells to summon the populace to discuss any injustice which they thought they were suffering. It was also a watch tower from which the approach of an enemy was noted.

It is this great bell which Browning immortalized in Roland's famous ride to Ghent. It dates from 1314, but was recast in 1630, and bears the inscription: "My name is Roland. When I toll, there is a fire; when I peal there is a victory."

The citizens of Ghent have thought much of the good things of life, for the streets nearby are named after articles of food—Fish street, Poultry street, Butter street and, rather tragically, the Street of the Lost Bread.

The practice of tracking down and jailing debtors in England was inaugurated in 1282 when it became necessary to evolve some method of gaining security from foreigners and strangers. So parliament in that year passed the Statute of the Merchants, which provided that in lending money the lender could bring the borrower before the Lord Mayor of London or the chief warden of any other town and make him acknowledge the debt and the date set for the payoff. Failing payment, the creditor could then demand a warrant and commit the debtor to prison.

This custom lasted for six centuries. The British money lenders later took to this practice so thoroughly that in 1825, a year of "commercial panic," there were issued 101,000 writs for the arrest of debtors. This caused so much indignation among relatives of the prisoners that ten years later they prevailed upon parliament to alleviate the laws, and in 1868, by further legislation, the custom was all but abolished.

Unique Wedding Ring Custom

A unique wedding ring custom, which reveals the matrimonial history of the wearer, exists among both the women and men of Norway. While the mate is alive, the ring is worn on the right hand and, when he or she dies, it is transferred to the left. Consequently in that country, one may see women and men with one, two, and even three "present" rings on the left hand—Collier's Weekly.

The Near East

The Near East is a purely popular term and is generally applied rather loosely to a large geographical region in southwestern Europe, southwestern Asia and northeastern Africa. As generally understood the Near East comprises Turkey in Europe, Asia Minor, Armenia, Georgia, Azerbaijan, the South Russian republics, Persia, Syria, Palestine, Mesopotamia, some of the islands in the Mediterranean, and perhaps Arabia and Egypt.

Ancient Feudal Manor

One of England's most ancient feudal manors, the "God Rogot" hotel at Winchester, dating back to the Tenth century, became a sanctuary for criminals and fugitives and held its own courts of justice until the reign of Henry VIII, when it passed to the dean of Winchester cathedral. The main structure of the manor, built in 1335, remains virtually unaltered.

Bills Voted by Jackson

Andrew Jackson, as President, vetoed every bill for public improvements that Congress laid before him until convinced that the proposed measure would be of improvement to the whole country and not to a portion of it alone.

The homemaker should remember that dirt and dust are among the chief causes of light, and that a coating of dust on fixtures or lamp bulbs may reduce the light output as much as 50 per cent. To get the maximum efficiency out of your lighting equipment, be sure to wash the bulbs and fixtures occasionally in warm soaps and water.

Too Busy Preparing to Do Any Real Fighting

TALKS TO PARENTS

Corrective Methods

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

Shall I spank my child? Will he be crushed and humiliated if I do? Will I leave scars on his personality, crush his self-respect and cow him for life by such treatment? Shall I be taking advantage of his weakness and defenselessness, acting the bully if I lay hands on him and force him by violence to obey my rules?

It all depends, not on what one does, but how one does it. There are just as many bullies among non-spankers as among spankers. Just as many children are injured for life by moral suasion and mental torture as by physical force and bodily torture. The bully is always the bully no matter how he expresses himself.

All the child asks as he is being punished, and the feeling that he is being punished, not to satisfy personal rancor, but on an established principle of right and wrong. In punishing a child consistency and reason are far more important than the form the punishment takes.

The child who sees the reason for his punishment and acknowledges it needs very little correction beyond a word of reproof and advice here and there, and should need no punishment at all by the time he is eight or ten. The child who always has been punished because his parents were annoyed or hurt or tired, and took these personal feelings out on him by scolding or spanking, will probably never learn the rules by which the world lives, but will be a rebel and need correction all his life.

Frequent punishment of any kind defeats its own end. Unhappiness should never be given in a spirit of revenge. It cannot undo the past, but should look toward the future. If it is kept in mind, what one does to attain the desired end becomes unimportant.

Bird, Imitator of Sound

The Australian kookaburra is believed to be the best imitator of sound in the animal kingdom. With incredible fidelity it can mimic, for example, the bark of the dog, the crow of the cock, the cry of a child, the hum of a saw and the whistle of a locomotive—Allen Fiske, Chicago, Ill., in Collier's Weekly.

Scientific methods permit the farmer to raise a larger, higher quality crop at lower cost and on a smaller acreage. Even though his selling prices remain stationary, he is enabled to make more money by reducing his production expenses.

A Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — Democrats of Virginia—perhaps Senator Glass himself—have provided the Democratic national convention with a model for a short platform, and it contains a cautioning note or two just such as Glass has uttered in the Senate.

The model is the same Glass and his Virginians have always provided—the state platform which he drafted or guided for 44 years or more. The 1936 Virginia platform contained 233 words, more than one-sixth the length of the "short" 1932 Democratic national platform.

It did not go into detail, it did not mention gold or F.W.A. or the Pan-American union, or even the agricultural problem.

Its framework of important large-ly because Senator Glass has been Virginia's representative on the Democratic platform committee with but one interruption since 1904.

Command F. D. R.'s Aims

IN THE 1936 Virginia platform it was written that Virginia Democracy "recommends its devotion to the sound principles of representative government," adding:

"At no time within the history of the nation has adherence to these sound principles been more imperative than today."

Specifically alluded to Jeffersonian principles of government as essentially guiding. Then it went on to cover the Roosevelt administration in this manner:

"We commend the humanitarian purposes of President Roosevelt in his earnest and persistent efforts to rescue the country from an unprecedented depression and wish for him the largest measure of success in every sound measure which he may hereafter project, Virginia favors the President's recommendation by the national convention and also that of John N. Garner for vice-presidential."

Seemingly Reservations

REPUBLICANS and Democrats alike who regularly look to what the Little Virginian is contemplating the noted that in spite of the firm government of Roosevelt, there were some reservations.

And further, the platform states that Virginia wishes the President success in every "sound" measure he may project in the future. Glass has criticized continuation of certain banking powers within the Federal government and opposed delegated authority in relief expenditures.

Events Around
Convention Town

Philadelphia, June 25 (AP).—A slip of a silver dollar decided Washington state's representation on the platform committee at the Democratic convention after the delegation experienced some difficulty in picking a man.

E. V. Hurley called "heads" and won the job. Previously three men had turned it down because the delegation wanted them to fight for the Townsend pension plan and "production-for-use." Hurley promised to make such a fight.

This convention is fairly alive with "delegates from the Virgin Islands."

Everytime "Big Jim" Farley wants to get a friend through a guarded door without arguing about credentials, he says to the doorkeeper:

"That's all right, he's a delegate from the Virgin Islands." And through he goes, badge or no badge.

Many of the Missouri delegates were "shocked" when they saw Pepper Martin here.

The St. Louis Cardinals star, who goes in for fun just as hard as he goes in for baseball, greeted his acquaintances with a little electric buzzer concealed in his hand.

Willard J. Breidenthal, delegate from Kansas, walked into the resolutions committee room wearing a large Kansas sunflower emblem.

"We are just serving notice on the Republicans that we have not surrendered this sunflower emblem to them yet," he said.

Awed and amazed, women delegates to the Democratic national convention today grasped gingerly a new authority to sit with the men in framing the party's policies.

"It is the beginning for women of a chance to take an active part in shaping political policy," said Miss Harriet Elliott, dean of women at the University of North Carolina.

While women have not before on the platform committee, not until yesterday were they formally enrolled as alternate members in such a number. For each member of the committee—and there is one from each state and possession—a person of the "opposite sex" now is to be chosen under a motion approved by the convention.

Immediately after the motion was approved the North Carolina delegation elected Miss Elliott who, besides being dean of women is professor of political science. A number of other states chose their members.

Soon afterward all Democratic tradition was shattered when Mrs. Elizabeth Graham, of California, entered the innermost sanctum of the policy-makers and sat for a short time with a sub-committee actually drafting the platform.

Wyoming continued its habit of naming as alternate Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, who was elected the state's first woman governor in 1924. She is director of the mint.

"It's a fine step ahead for women political workers," she said. "It will encourage them to more constant work because they now have some chance of seeing issues they advocate in their clubs written into party policy."

Professor Finds World's Oldest Mummy in Egypt

Cairo.—Declared to be the world's oldest mummy, the perfectly preserved remains of a woman who died more than 5,700 years ago while anticipating motherhood was discovered by Prof. Selim Hassan.

The rare discovery climaxed a series of remarkable finds unearthed by the anthropologist beneath the age-old pyramids of El Gizeh.

Early this month Professor Hassan's expedition came upon the lavish tomb of a beautiful Egyptian princess, daughter of the mighty Pharaoh Chebron, who reigned ancient Egypt's second loftiest pyramid.

The mummy was in a state of preservation only the Egyptians were able to achieve and the secret of which has never been fully ascertained.

The dead woman was identified as the wife of Suchem Netor, highest ranking officer of the Court of Pharaoh Chebron, who ruled antiquity's most powerful empire 2,900 years before Christ.

Wrapped in many yards of bandages and encased in a richly carved coffin, the mummy was said to antedate the remains of the princess and prince discovered earlier this month, making it the oldest mummy ever found.

Of course the farmers are all honest. It's the wicked commission men who always put the biggest vegetables on the top of the basket.

Highlights of New Income Tax Law

By J. S. SEIDMAN, C. P. A.

A new income tax law is in our midst. Let us try to get better acquainted with the stranger, at least with respect to some of the important and general characteristics. We will leave to the experts the more intimate details and the host of qualifications, restrictions and exceptions inevitable in an income tax law.

First regarding rates. This is probably the first law where no change at all was made over the previous law in the rates as they apply to individuals. In other words, the normal tax continues at 4 per cent, and the surtax continues to split its wings from 4 per cent to 75 per cent. However, there has been a very important change made with respect to the tax that will have to be paid on dividends. In virtually all the laws heretofore, dividends were subject only to surtax. They were exempt from normal tax on the principle that the profits out of which the dividends were paid were already taxed to the corporation. The 1936 Act wipes out this exemption. Dividends will now be subject to the normal tax as well as the surtax. This means, in effect, that insofar as dividends are concerned, the tax rate on individuals has gone up 4 per cent.

Corporate Rates

Corporations will probably look with envious eye on the immunity that individuals have enjoyed from a change in tax rates. Corporate rates have gotten a real shake-up. Some have gone down, others have gone up. But more important than all is the fact that a brand new form of tax has been added to the list, and appears for the first time on the American tax stage. It is the undistributed profits tax. Corporations may now therefore be liable to four taxes with respect to their incomes, namely, the normal tax, an excess profits tax, and undistributed profits tax, and either a personal holding company tax or an unreasonable surplus accumulation tax. Let us briefly review each of these in the order mentioned. We therefore start with the normal tax.

Under the old law, the basic corporate tax rate began at 12 1/2 per cent and was graduated to 15 per cent. The 15 per cent maximum continues in the new law. The 12 1/2 per cent minimum has been lowered to 8 per cent, with corporations having a net income of less than $15,000 as the beneficiaries. Concretely, the way it will now work is that the first $2,000 of income will be taxed at 8 per cent, the next $13,000 at 11 per cent, the next $25,000 at 13 per cent, and everything over $40,000 at 15 per cent. In figuring taxable income for this purpose, corporations will be entitled to a new deduction, namely, the amount of the excess profits tax. On the other hand, corporations, somewhat like individuals, will have to pay a higher tax on dividends. Under the old law, 90 per cent of the amount of dividends was exempt. The new law lowers this to 85 per cent. To put it another way, heretofore only 10 per cent of the dividends received by a corporation were subject to tax, whereas now 15 per cent will be taxable.

Undistributed Profits Tax

We come now to the new hero or villain, as the case may be—the undistributed profits tax. This tax ranges from 7 per cent to 27 per cent on retained income, depending on the percentage that the amount retained bears to the total income. Banks, insurance companies, foreign corporations, companies in bankruptcy and companies insolvent and in receivership, are exempt from the tax. The computation works as follows: The starting point is the net income as computed for normal tax purposes. This means the net income with dividends received included 100 per cent, and not merely the 15 per cent on which the normal tax is paid. The net income is then adjusted by deducting for the normal tax itself and for tax-free interest on federal government obligations. The net amount so arrived at is the so-called adjusted net income that is supposed to be available for distribution as dividends. There is now deducted the amounts paid out in dividends, and the remainder is the amount undistributed. There is, however, an important additional deduction, and that is for amounts that the corporation was prevented from paying out as dividends or was required to pay or set aside out of current profits for the discharge of a debt, under written contracts entered into prior to May 1, 1936, and expressly dealing with dividend payments or the debt payments, as the case may be. An agreement, for example, not to pay dividends unless the current assets were twice the liabilities, or an agreement to apply a given part of the profits to the redemption of bonds, would give rise to the deduction to the extent of the amounts required to live up to the agreement.

The matter of actual dividends paid may bear further consideration. The dividend need not be in cash. It can be paid in kind. In that event, the amount of the dividend is regarded as either the value of the property at the time of payment or its cost to the corporation, whichever is lower. (This is only for the purpose of the corporation. The stockholder is required to take the dividend in as income on the basis of the fair market value of the property, regardless of the cost to the corporation.) The dividend can also be paid in script or other obligation of the corporation. If it is so paid, the amount of the dividend is regarded as the face value of the obligation or its fair market value at the time the dividend is paid, whichever is lower. The dividend can also be paid in the form of stock in the corporation, or stock rights, of a character that would make the stockholders taxable on them if that is done, the dividend is regarded as equal to the value of the stock or the rights. In any event, the important thing is that dividends paid and amounts that the corporation is by contract restricted from paying, are deductible in arriving at the amount on which the undistributed profits tax is based. If more dividends are paid than the year's adjusted income, the excess can be carried forward and used as a deduction in the next two years, until absorbed.

Computation

Knowing the adjusted net income and the amount remaining undistributed, the tax can now be computed. It works in this way: 7% is paid on the part of the undistributed profits that does not exceed 10% of the adjusted net income, 12 1/2% on the next 10%; 17% on the next 20%; 22% on the next 20%; and 27% on the amount of the undistributed profits that exceed 60% of the adjusted net income. This all sounds very complex, but it really isn't so bad, as an illustration will bear out. Let us suppose Corporation A has a net income in 1936 of $100,000, that its normal tax is $15,000, and that the corporation paid out during the year $25,000 in dividends. Its undistributed profits tax would be determined as follows:

Net income $100,000
Less: Normal tax 15,000
Adjusted net income $85,000
Dividends paid 25,000

Undistributed net income, $60,000
First 10% of adjusted net income, $8,500, the rate is 7% or $595
Next 10% of adjusted net income, $8,500, the rate is 12 1/2% or 1,020
Next 20% of adjusted net income, $17,000, the rate is 17% or 2,890
Next 20% of adjusted net income, $17,000, the rate is 22% or 3,740
Remaining undistributed income, $9,000, the rate is 27% or 2,430

The undistributed profits tax on $60,000 is therefore $10,675. There is an important exception to this general method of computation. It has been made to alleviate the situation of corporations with small incomes. The law provides that where the adjusted net income is less than $50,000, then up to $5,000 comes in the 7% bracket regardless of the percentage that the $5,000 may be of the income. A corporation, for example, that had a net income of only $5,000 and paid none of it out in dividends, would pay an undistributed profits tax of only 7%. If this exception had not been made, the rate would go to 27%, since the corporation retained 100% of its income.

Other Taxes on Retained Profits

So much for the undistributed profits tax. The underlying principle is palpably to put an incentive on corporations to distribute their profits to the stockholders, or conversely, to pay a penalty for not doing so. Along the same path are the two other taxes remaining for consideration, namely, the personal holding company tax and the unreasonable surplus accumulation tax. The personal holding company tax continues as before, except that the rates have been lowered 12 per cent all the way through. Under the 1936 Act, the undistributed profits of a personal holding company would have been subject to tax at rates from 20 per cent to 60 per cent. The new law makes the rates from 8 per cent to 48 per cent. In the case of the unreasonable surplus accumulation tax, there has also been a reduction in rates, this time of 10 per cent. The rates heretofore were 25 per cent on the first $100,000 of retained net income and 35 per cent on the remainder. Now they are 15 per cent and 25 per cent respectively. The old law provided, as regards both the personal holding company tax and the tax on unreasonable accumulation of surplus, that these taxes could be eliminated if the stockholders reported as dividends in their own personal returns their share of the corporate income, whether distributed or not. This continues in the new law with an important modification to the effect that the elimination of the tax does not apply if more than 10 per cent of the stock is owned by corporations.

We have now run the gamut of the various taxes. The time they get their first workout under the new law is important because they do not start uniformly for everybody. The controlling principle is that they apply for all accounting periods beginning on or after January 1, 1936. That means that all taxpayers reporting on a calendar year basis come under the new provisions for the full year 1936. On the other hand, a corporation preparing its returns on the basis of a fiscal year, ending November 30, let us say, would not be subject to the new provisions until the period December 1, 1936 to November 30, 1937. In other words, its income during the first 11 months of 1936 will come under the old law and hence be free from the undistributed profits tax, and the changes in rates, etc., applicable to the other taxes.

All told, we can see that while Uncle Sam may be a silent partner, he certainly is not an inconsequential partner, and that under the new partnership agreement his share has increased considerably—or at least according to the budget figures, he expects an increase out of it.

DISCUSSING THIRD PARTY PLANS

POLITICS at Random

To ALL intents and purposes, the machinery of the parties now has been set up for the 1936 campaign; but what about the issues?

Certainly the opening exchanges between the Republican and Democratic organizations have left much to the imagination.

The Republican keynote is a bitter condemnation of Mr. Roosevelt and his works, and the Democratic keynote is a paean of praise for Mr. Roosevelt, plus a shower of disparaging remarks about Mr. Laund.

The Cleveland convention's rhythmic complaint about "Three Long Years" is answered by a song of mockery against the Republican candidate and managers, engineered by those in charge of the convention at Philadelphia.

Name-calling reaches a new high, the sincerity and even the morality of each side is challenged by the other, and the questions of public policy which might be expected to receive first attention are left back-stage.

First Utterances

ON JUNE 13, as the Republican delegates were traveling homeward from Cleveland, Democratic National Chairman Farley led off the Democratic attack.

He placed a very low estimate on Mr. Laund's background and experience, and characterized his nomination as "a confession of guilt on the part of the Republican party."

"I wonder how the Republican leaders keep from laughing out loud," said Mr. Farley, "at the gigantic hoax they are trying to put over on the country."

Twenty-four hours later, Republican National Chairman Hamilton replied. He charged Mr. Farley with a tendency "to misrepresent everything which is too honest for him to understand," and said this of the President:

"Mr. Roosevelt was so eager for the nomination at any price (in 1932) that he flew to Chicago to accept the platform 100 per cent, and so far as the country knows never glanced at it again."

What Next?

DOES all of this mean that the campaign is to be fought, after all, on charges of deception, dishonesty, conspiracy and fraud, reaching its climax later on, perhaps, in talk of burglary and horse-stealing?

Instead of the epochal struggle over principles expected in so many quarters is the battle to resemble a sort of double-action grand jury proceeding, with the participants on both sides selecting their choicest verbal ammunition from the lexicon of criminology?

Convention time very often is a time of irrational thought and in temperate speech. Many times in the past political managers have pitched their utterances on a level never touched by the candidates themselves.

It may be so again. At least the country will wait wonderingly and anxiously to see.

According to James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Berlin and president of the National Resorts and Parks Association, the United States is about to enjoy a greater share of world travel than at any previous time.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of taking acids and wastes out of the blood. A healthy person should pass about 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, waste stays in the body and may become poisonous. It may start nagging backaches, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't let it lay you up.

Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills—used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills.

Events Around The Empire State

Lake George, N. Y., June 25 (AP).—Experts from U. S. Department of Agriculture will survey the watershed in this Adirondack resort area next week as the first step in a campaign to eliminate an insect pest commonly called "punkie," which summer residents say, penetrates ordinary window screens and interrupts peaceful slumbers with a mosquito-like sting.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 25 (AP).—Selection of a jury to try Hilton T. Collins, 43, on a charge of first degree murder neared completion in Supreme Court today. Collins is accused of strangling his landlady, Mrs. Grace Elizabeth Matice, beauty parlor operator, in her shop May 4. Ten jurors were in the box when court opened.

Albany, N. Y., June 25 (AP).—Plans for expanding the Works Progress Administration nursery schools for pre-school children were disclosed at a convention of county nursery school supervisors here. Miss May Peabody, assistant director of child development and parent education for the State Education Department, said the number of schools will almost be doubled by autumn.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 25 (AP).—Funeral services were planned today for Mrs. Anna Nemeth, 41, of Buffalo, and Donald Peterson, niece, of Springfield, who died of burns. The boy was burned Monday when a can of gasoline he was pouring on a bonfire exploded. Mrs. Nemeth was trapped in her cleaning shop Tuesday when gasoline fumes ignited a hot plane.

DRY BROOK

Dry Brook, June 25.—Miss Magdalena Stewart of Phoenixia and friend, Paul Rosa, of Shandaken, were Tuesday evening guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Stewart.

Mrs. Mattie Haynes of Arkville is visiting her niece, Mrs. Grover Kittle, here. The pupils of Mapledale District School with their parents and teacher, Miss Teahan, enjoyed a picnic at Devil's Tombstone, Chichester, on Thursday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Stewart of Rahway, N. J., spent the week-end with their parents here. Several from this place attended the Haynes re-union, which was held at Woodland Valley campsite on Sunday.

Mrs. George Stewart, who has been confined to her bed for the past week suffering from pleurisy, is recovering nicely.

Mrs. Robert Leal and son, Stanley, and daughters, Eleanor and Roberta, of Cross River, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Stewart here on Wednesday. Miss Eleanor will remain here to assist in caring for her grandmother.

Stop Signal Passers Club New Members

Several Additional Members Added
As Result of Arrests Last Night
By Police—Other Cases in Police Court.

Colonial Chapter of the Stop Signal Passers Club received several new members in police court today when Judge Gill imposed the initiation fee, consisting of a fine of $2 each, on those arrested. William J. Rice of Summer street passed the stop sign at Henry and Fair streets; Charles Goodley of Downs street, passed the same sign, as did Kathryn Millard of Henry street. Geraldine L. Kelley of the Neighborhood Road passed the sign at St. James and Fair street.

All of the drivers admitted failing to bring their cars to a complete stop, but all said that they had slowed down at the street intersection and thrown their cars into second gear, and then after seeing no cars in sight had proceeded over the street intersection.

Girard DeVeau of East Strand and Ernest Longyear of Linderman avenue, were arrested charged with driving a car with four adults riding in the front seat, which is a violation of the state traffic law. DeVeau told the judge that he was driving a coupe and as it was raining he did not want to place his guests in the rumble seat. Judge Gill suspended sentence in both cases.

Frank E. Higgins of Fresno, Calif., arrested for public intoxication on Fair street, was given an opportunity to get out of town.

Ruth Leah Pross of Brooklyn, charged with speeding 55 miles an hour on East Chester street, forfeited $15 cash bail by failing to appear in court today.

Rodney J. Donnelly of Broadway, arrested on a charge of operating a car with only one license plate, explained that the other plate had been lost, and that he had applied for a new set of plates. Judge Gill said that under the circumstances he would suspend sentence.

John Trumpeter of Lincoln Park, arrested for public intoxication, received a suspended sentence. He was about to enter his car parked on Thomas street, when arrested.

Alexander Petrus, 69, born in the West Indies, and who resides in Milton, got off a train here last evening and became lost on Pine Grove avenue, near the cemetery. The police picked him up for his own protection. He had over $150 with him in cash. This morning he said he desired to return to Milton and sentence was suspended.

At least Joe Louis has left this historic utterance: "I quit, I quit! I done everybody wrong."

Produce Auction At Highland July 9

The first farmers' produce auction in New York state will be started near Highland on Thursday afternoon, July 9. All farmers of Ulster and Orange counties are invited to send fruit and vegetables to this market. It will be known as the Mid-Hudson Produce Auction and will be managed by the G.L.F. Marketing Corporation under the direction of a board of directors composed of Theodor Oxholm of Esopus, Frank Gaffney, Clintondale; J. J. Mack, Highland; Benjamin Chillum, Marlborough; Edgar Clark, Milton, and Eber Coy of Ardonia.

The produce offered for sale will be sold to the highest bidder, but the producer has the privilege to "no sale" his consignment. Seven similar auctions have been in operation in New Jersey for several years and are highly successful. The directors ask the cooperation of all growers to give the market a fair trial.

It is stated that all growers will be benefitted by the market because it will establish a price for local produce. Anyone may call the auction and secure the prices paid on any day. The scale of charges will be very reasonable and will be on a package basis. Any package selling for from one to 24 cents, the grower will be charged one cent per package for the selling cost. Two cents will be charged for sales of between 25 and 49 cents; three cents between 50 and 99 cents; 5 cents between $1 and $1.99; 7 cents between $2 and $2.99 and 9 cents for any sales amounting to $3 or over per package.

Further information about the auction may be obtained from any of the directors or at the Farm Bureau office in Kingston. The directors invite all produce dealers to attend the first auction on July 9.

Prizes Awarded At School No. 3

The Patrick H. Cullen Memorial Prizes, which hitherto have been awarded to the boy and to the girl who stood highest among the boys or among the girls in the graduation class in the judgment of their teachers during the last two years of their grammar school work on the following: Character, school activities, mental and physical alertness and scholarship, were to be awarded this year as first and second prizes in class competition and judged on the same basis. When the decisions of the teachers were handed in it was found that Doris Roenn and James Howard were tied for first place. It was therefore decided that each should be awarded the Patrick H. Cullen Memorial $5 prize for excellent work.

Nineteen boys and girls were awarded books for being neither tardy nor absent during the school year. They were Margaret Baschnagel, Virginia Blanschan, Alice Burns, Robert Burns, Harold Conro, Anna Gilbert, Floyd Gilbert, Fred Gilbert, Frances Gualtieri, James Howard, Harold Lee, Evelyn Marks, Fred Plattner, Richard Schabot, Gloria Schultz, James Snyder, Martha Wells, Harry Wolven and Philip Wright.

Life's one disillusionment after another. Even a Joe Louis can't lick everybody.

ZIONCHECK CHANGES QUARTERS

NEW YORK GOVERNORSHIP CHANGES HANDS

Lt. Gov. H. William Bray is shown boarding the train on which he departed from Albany in a "mystery" summons to the scene of the Democratic National Convention, leaving the governorship of New York to John J. Replica of Clermont Sold to Henry Ford

The replica of the Clermont, the first steamboat to sail the Hudson river, has been purchased by Henry Ford, the automobile manufacturer, and the machinery has been taken from the old vessel and will be placed in the Ford museum at Dearborn. The hull of the boat is badly rotted during the many years it has been grounded in the mud in the lagoon at Kingston Point, but efforts are being made to patch up the hull so that it can be floated out of the lagoon.

The famous replica was constructed during the Hudson-Fulton celebration many years ago, and sailed in the big parade up the Hudson river under her own power. Following the celebration she was placed in the lagoon at Kingston Point where she had remained ever since. No efforts had been made to preserve her and as a result she became badly rotted by the weather.

The replica was owned by the Hudson River Day Line which sold her to Mr. Ford. When the hull is moved from the lagoon it is expected that it will be broken up for the wood in it.

Kemp—Well, what is there to worry about?
Cramer—Lots. Harold isn't home yet, and the cat is.

Sambo—De subject were "What is de mos' benefit to mankind, de sun or de moon."

Today the average residential electric customer pays less than $3 a month for service—at the lowest average rate in history. Even customers using electric power for a multitude of purposes—refrigeration, cooking, incidental heating, washing, ironing, etc.—pay less for power than they do for amusement, shoes and similar items. It is difficult to compute the great dollars-and-cents benefits the brings to the average family—and it is impossible to compute the infinitely more important benefits that follow when back-breaking tasks are performed swiftly, easily and cheaply by power. If the whole achievement of the private power industry had been its record in lifting tremendous burdens from the shoulders of the household, its place in history would be a great one.

Graduates Choose Jobs Or Marriage

Ithaca, N. Y., June 25—More than one-third of the seniors in the New York state college of home economics are either married or have positions for next year, and thus they live up to the standards set by the 1,365 previous graduates. All but 30 of the women who were graduated between 1911 and 1936 are either married or employed.

Four of this year's class have already married, as have 115 alumnae, the largest proportion of the graduates of the college. Of these married graduates, 98 combine homemaking with an outside career. Nine new graduates have teaching contracts, a profession in which 276 of the college's former students are employed. Ten girls are to be dietitians in hospitals, cafeterias, and restaurants, a vocation which has taken 131 Cornell home economists. The extensive service, which has 43 earlier graduates, has signed six girls of the class of 1936, three as assistant home demonstration agents and three as 4-H club workers. Two graduates are joining the ranks of the 29 alumni of recent years who are now engaged in graduate work.

SHERIFF'S SALE

COUNTY COURT: ULSTER COUNTY—Charles Parker, Plaintiff, vs. Mary E. Griswold, Defendant.

By virtue of an execution against the property of Mary E. Griswold, issued out of the Ulster County Court, in the above entitled action, to me directed and delivered, I, A. F. Moliniaux, Sheriff of the County of Ulster, shall sell at public auction on the 27th day of July, 1936, at twelve o'clock noon, Eastern Daylight Saving Time, at the front door or main entrance of the Ulster County Court House, in the City of Kingston, N. Y., the right, title and interest which the said Mary E. Griswold had on the 26th day of April, 1935, or which she subsequently acquired of, in and to:

All That Certain Lot, Piece or Parcel of Land, with the buildings and improvements thereon erected, situate, lying and being in the City of Kingston, in the County of Ulster, on the easterly side of Wall Street, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning on the easterly side of Wall Street at the fence which divides the lot hereby conveyed, and the stone fence lot and thence easterly along the said fence about one hundred and fifteen feet, to the lands of Mr. or Mrs. Osterhout, and thence southerly along the same promontory and thence westerly along one hundred feet to the place of beginning. Being the same premises as described in a deed in Mary E. Griswold recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office in Liber 325 at page 124 on September 11, 1935.

The above premises will be sold subject to Home Owners Loan Corporation mortgage of $3,700.25 in Book of Mortgages 415 at page 343 and interest and taxes.

Dated, June 10, 1936.

A. F. MOLINIAUX, Sheriff.

May Good Month For Better Herds

Ithaca, N. Y., June 25—May was a banner month for high production in New York dairy herd improvement associations as more than 15,000 cows, 28 per cent of those on test, made the honor roll.

In addition, says G. W. Talley of the state college of agriculture, 224 association herds made monthly averages of more than 40 pounds of butterfat to the cow. Fifteen of these herds averaged more than 50 pounds, while the high herd in the state went about 60 pounds of butterfat to the cow.

High herd for the month is owned by Beulah Morrison of St. Lawrence county. Mr. Morrison's herd of 21 registered Holsteins, averaging 154 days from calving, averaged 1,811 pounds of milk and 62.5 pounds of butterfat. The high cow in the herd gave 2,960 pounds of milk and 94.7 pounds of butterfat for the month.

Other herds that averaged more than 50 pounds of butterfat to the cow are owned by West Lawn farms of Broome county; Bert Minekime of Cattaraugus county; Peter Bertram of Columbia county; J. Gernatt, Jr., of Erie county; Soper and Holden of Essex county; D. D. Harvey of Franklin county; Dr. Woodward

Shaw of Fulton county; H. C. Montgomery of Jefferson county; A. G. Oia of Montrose county; Frank Potter of Otsego county; Jesse Hunt of Tioga county; Mrs. E. Colegrove, Tompkins county; and H. C. Tripp, Tompkins county.

Canada has just been doing honour to the memory of a scientist who may fairly be described as the father of Canadian wheat. Dr. William Saunders, first director of experimental farms in Canada, will have his memory perpetuated by a beautiful administrative building which bears his name and is located on the Dominion Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa, where much of his research work was done.

SHOWERS and COOLER

in Homes equipped with Automatic Gas Water-Heaters

THERE'S NOTHING quite so soothing after a hot day as a leisurely, shower-bath, with the water adjusted to exactly the temperature you want, staying at that temperature as long as you want it. There's only one way to enjoy that summer luxury—have your shower fixtures backed by a modern gas automatic water-heater. The automatic controls maintain a generous supply of hot water, always ready, and always at the same temperature.

Luxury it is, in terms of comfort, but not in terms of price. As a matter of fact, automatic water-heating with gas is cheaper than ever before. Dependable automatic heaters are lower in cost now, they use less gas, and the gas itself costs less.

We will gladly examine your present water-heating system and tell you how much it will cost to make it completely automatic—how much gas it will use too. Probably you can afford it this summer. May as well find out.

MORAN SCHOOL'S SUMMER TERM OPENS JUNE 29
Registrations are now being accepted for the Summer Term of the Moran School of Business, Burgevin Building, corner Fair and Main streets. June 29 and July 6 are suggested by the management as particularly desirable beginning dates.
The Moran Summer Sessions offer intensive business courses. Provision is made for those desiring regular business courses in preparation for a business career; high school commercial graduates desiring post-graduate courses to lift them above the average and hasten their acceptance of high-grade positions; pre-college courses in shorthand, typewriting, etc., for those about to enter college; intensive training for college graduates, teachers, and others, who wish to add technical skill to their general education as an "entering wedge" into business.
Speed of advancement is more rapid at this season than at any other time of year, made possible by intensive specializing and the tutorial method of instruction—two outstanding features of these sessions. Special arrangements are made for those desiring part-time schedules, morning or afternoon.
Among the more popular subjects included in the summer program are Shorthand, Typewriting, Ac-

CHAMBERLIN REPORTED ENGAGED

A dual mission of romance and business was reported to have been undertaken by Clarence Chamberlin (right), transatlantic flier, who flew from New York to Portland, Me., with Miss Jean Ashby (getting into plane), daughter of state Senator George Ashby. MILDEW! SCORCH! STAINS! Removed BY MY MAGIC!

DON'T WORRY about mildew... scorch... stains... on white or color-fast cottons and linens. With Clorox on the job they disappear magically. Mildew is a fungus—washing has little effect on it. Clorox goes right to the source of the trouble—its germicidal action destroys the fungus—mildew vanishes. It removes scorch discoloration just as effectively.
Clorox banishes dinginess and ordinary stains from white cottons and linens in the regular laundering process. In a slightly stronger solution Clorox takes out stubborn stains—ink, fruit, flower, grass, beverage, medicine, blood.
Clorox disinfects, deodorizes and removes stains from refrigerators, drinkboards, sinks, bathtubs, toilet bowls, tile, linoleum, sidewalk, utensils, garbage receptacles.
Clorox even provides a deodorizing, anti-septic bath for cats and dogs.
Like Clorox itself, the Clorox label is a revelation of safety and easier housekeeping. It also lists many important personal uses. Clorox is concentrated for economy. There is only one Clorox.

At The Theatres
Today
Broadway: "Big Brown Eyes". Wherein an innocent looking, beautiful but not mentally bright man-curiat matches her wits against a New York gang and wins the honors without even scratching her make-up. The story centers around this man-curiat, her boy friend who is a progressive young detective and a nest of jewel thieves who will stop at nothing to get their plan through. Along with all the excitement is much humor and romance and the picture dashes along in an entertaining way from rise to fall. The cast offers Gary Grant, Joan Bennett, Walter Pidgeon, Isabel Jewel, Alan Baxter, Lloyd Nolan and Marjorie Gateson. A Walter Wagner production, directed by Raoul Walsh.
Kingston: "Florida Special" and "Heroes of the Range". Much hair-raising adventure occurs in the first offering at the Kingston, the story of what happens aboard a spooling train. On board we find the usual millionaire, the inevitable newspaper reporter, the "Joels", a gang of crooks and a playboy with a broken heart. The cast includes Jack Oakie, Sally Eilers, Kent Taylor, Francis Drake, Sidney Blackmer and Jackie Heller of radio fame. "Heroes of the Range" is a talkie of the old west, where a man's life depended on his trigger finger. Into it all rides the courageous Ken Maynard, posing as a bandit killer but really a United States marshal bent on tracking down a tough bunch of desperados. He does it too, single-handed, and wins the girl and glory. June Gale, Harry Woods and Harry Kortman are featured.
Orpheum: "Everybody's Old Man" and "Java Head." Irving S. Cobb

more or less steps into the shoes of Will Rogers in this play that concerns an old fellow who during the action of the picture, is a well done show, cleverly supported by a capable list of players. "Java Head" is an oriental melodrama with dapper, intrigue and love all lurking in the background. Anna May Wong heads the cast.
Tomorrow
Broadway: Same.
Kingston: Same.
Orpheum: "Love Before Breakfast" and "Between Men". Carole Lombard has an interesting time of it in the opening comedy romance at the Orpheum and the show is good entertainment, a mixture of laughter, sophistication and enjoyable dialogue. "Between Men" is the other attraction, a husky, he-man tale with John Mack Brown doing the honors.

Commencement Dance Was Great Success

Graduation activities of Kingston High School closed last evening with the annual commencement dance held at the Municipal Auditorium. Without question it was one of the most successful of these dances ever held, being attended by more than 200 couples. Nearly half of the dancers were alumni who found this occasion an excellent opportunity for renewing former acquaintanceships. During the dances colored lights were thrown across the ballroom door from the balcony, which combined with the pastel shades of the evening dresses gave the affair a festive touch. The music was furnished by Cy Austin and his Aces. Miss Emily Busby, also a high school alumna, sang several selections with the orchestra, which were especially enjoyed by the audience, since so many of them were her personal friends.

The Auditorium was effectively decorated with the class colors, cardinal and gray. The colors were draped at the sides of the stage to form a curtain effect while cardinal and gray streamers led to a large gold and white shield in the center bearing the class numerals, 1936. The woodwork of the platform was concealed by white covering with a simple and very effective gold border of a conventional Greek design. Large gold Greek shields were placed at either end of the platform while large cedar trees concealed the steps to the stage. The setting was planned and made by Edward Milliken.

The dancing was concluded at 12:30 o'clock after which the Parent-Teacher Association served delicious sandwiches and cake. Those arranging for the refreshments were Mrs. Frank Egan, president of the Parent-Teacher Association; Mrs. Chester Van Gassbeek, Mrs. Joseph Garland, Mrs. Leonard Flicker, Mrs. M. Donald Lane, Mrs. Windrum, Mrs. Harris Ingalls, Mrs. Ray Everett, Mrs. James A. Mather, Mrs. Arthur Fritog, Mrs. Parker Brinnier and Mrs. Stanley Matthews.

The committee arranging the dance was to be commended for the success which they achieved: Boaz Shattan, chairman, assisted by Miss Ruth Denike, Miss Mary O'Connor, James Harder, Miss Marjorie Osterhout and John Decker. The chaperones for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Norwood, Miss Laura Bailey, Mrs. James Murphy, Jr., Miss Marion Healy, Miss Agnes Scott Smith, Thoron Culver, Arthur Kurtzacker, Watson Bailey and Richard Whiston.

Selsale to Geneva.

London, June 25 (AP)—Halle Selsale, exiled emperor of Ethiopia, departed for Geneva today to direct his conquered nation's last diplomatic stand against Italy.

AVIATOR AND CHILDREN DIE IN SEA TRAGEDY

ENDS 9,000 MILE DASH FOR LIFE

Kelvin Rogers, three-year-old Australian boy, arrived in Philadelphia for a bronchoscopic operation to remove a nail from his lung after a 9,000 mile journey from his home with his mother, Mrs. Marjorie Rogers. Australian physicians who failed to remove the nail said the boy would die unless it was taken out. (Associated Press Photo)

Two Held On Charge Of Stealing Chickens

Lee Beadle, 22, of Mt. Tremper, confessed Wednesday to State Trooper R. J. Dunn of Phoenix, the trooper said, that he was with Leroy W. Lane, 18, his brother-in-law, on the nights of June 5 and 19, when he stole chickens from the coop of Henry Bailey, on Beechford Farms, Mt. Tremper.

Beadle was involved in a confession made to Trooper Dunn Tuesday, the officer said, and a warrant was issued for his arrest yesterday by County Judge Frederick Traver, who, sitting as a committing magistrate when Beadle was arraigned at the court house, held him, when he waived examination, for the action of the grand jury Judge Traver paroled Beadle in the custody of Deputy Sheriff R. DeSilva.

Lane was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Thomas S. Brathwaite of Shokan, Tuesday midnight, and waived examination. He was held for the grand jury and is in the Ulster county jail.

Lane and Beadle are charged with stealing 12 Rhode Island Red hens from the Beechford Farms coop on the date mentioned and selling them to two boarding housekeepers in Mt.

Tremper. Fred Russell and Van Cockburn. Trooper Dunn said the men confessed to him that they stole the chickens and sold them, six to each of the two boarding house men, at the rate of six for $4, which they divided evenly.

IT SEEMS THE DEMOCRATS ARE HAVING FUN

Blinking and Squinting Is Common Among Albinoes

The whiteness of skin and hair of an albino is the result of lack of pigmentation. Pigmentation depends on color bases and enzymes or ferments, which cause the color bases to produce colored products, says Dr. J. H. Maczuga.

A person, animal or plant lacking either or both essentials, or the power to cause the ferments to act on the bases, will be an albino, although a mere lack of sunlight will cause albinism, for the ultraviolet rays are necessary to stimulate the enzymes.

In true albinism the skin seems almost transparent, the hair on all parts is white, and the eyes are pink. The latter condition being due to the lack of pigment in the transparent retina, which permits the blood circulating in the retinal vessels to be seen. Blinking and squinting are usually obvious.

Six Ohio Soldiers Rose to President of the U. S.

Six Ohio soldiers became President of the United States. They were: William Henry Harrison, the ninth President; James S. Grant, the eighth; the nineteenth, James A. Garfield, the twentieth, Benjamin Harrison, the twenty-third, and William McKinley, the twenty-fifth.

While William Henry Harrison was not born in Ohio, he made his home in this state, and resided there when elected to the Presidency. Harrison fought in the Indian wars, gaining the victory of Tippecanoe in 1811, and that of the Thames in 1813. Grant served through the Mexican and Civil wars, finally being raised to the rank of general. Hayes was brevetted a major general of volunteers in the Civil war. Garfield joined the Union army as lieutenant colonel of volunteers and rose in the ranks to major general. Benjamin Harrison served in the Civil war as commander of a regiment and was brevetted brigadier general. McKinley served in the Civil war, attaining the rank of major. Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Americans never do things by halves. When we get this building boom under way, we'll probably over-build until we have to seek millions of immigrants again to occupy the houses.

ATOM GUN REALIZES ALCHEMIST'S DREAM

Gold Made From Another Metal, Scientists Claim.

Washington.—An atom gun shooting atomic projectiles at speeds of 15,000 miles per second, with energies of 11,000,000 volts—more than double the power of any atom smashing device yet created by man, and capable of transmuting every element existing in nature—was announced here before the annual meeting of the National Academy of Sciences by Prof. Ernest O. Lawrence and Dr. J. M. Cork, of the University of California.

With this new atomic "Big Bertha," Doctor Lawrence and his co-workers say they have succeeded at last in realizing, on a small scale, the alchemist's dream of creating gold out of another metal. The quantities made, however, Doctor Lawrence remarked, are not of a magnitude to affect the treasury.

The feat was achieved by the bombardment of platinum with water, or rather with the hearts of double-weight hydrogen atoms taken from heavy water, known as deuterons.

New Substances Created.

The California alchemists converted the platinum not only into gold, but created out of it other substances that do not even exist in nature. These include a radioactive form of platinum known as radio-platinum, and radio-iridium, which also is a radioactive element new in nature.

The new atom gun can shoot a stream of deuteron bullets for the first time out into the open air, without the need of any vacuum tube. This stream of atomic bullets, which casts an eerie greenish-blue glow of preternatural aspect, is the most concentrated and most powerful beam of radiation so far produced by science. Placing one's finger in its path for an instant would cause its loss, Doctor Lawrence said, and great precaution must be taken not to come too close to it.

The beam in air has the relatively enormous length of 25 centimeters, about ten inches; the most powerful high voltage X-ray machines have not created a beam even one-fifth of this giant beam's energy even in a vacuum. Professor Lawrence expects to enclose the giant in a vacuum tube jacket, where its power is expected to be much greater.

More Powerful Than Radium. The 11,000,000 volt bullets, however, were created by Doctor Lawrence not out of heavy water atoms, but out of the hearts of atoms of helium gas, known as alpha particles, which weigh twice as much as the hearts of the heavy water atoms.

The alpha particles, which consist of two protons (cores of ordinary hydrogen atoms) and two neutrons (electrically neutral particles) are naturally emitted by radium, but the energy of the natural particles does not exceed 8,000,000 volts and cannot be controlled in a beam.

Doctor Lawrence's artificially produced alpha particles thus are about one-third more powerful than the natural radium particles, with the additional advantage that they can be made to go wherever wanted to do man's bidding.

Population in 10 States Drops During Five Years

Washington.—Population shifts that left ten states with fewer residents in 1935 than in 1930, despite a gain of nearly 5,000,000 for the nation as a whole, were reported by the census bureau.

The total population for the United States in 1935 was estimated at 127,621,000 several months ago.

The ten states which registered actual decreases were: Michigan, Wisconsin, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Montana, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

New York is still the most populous state, with 12,886,000, while Pennsylvania continues to rank second, with 10,066,000.

Among states gaining the most in the first year period were South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Tennessee.

Memorial for Builder of "Big Bertha" Ordered

Frankfurt-on-Main.—In this time when everywhere tablets are erected for persons once connected with Germany's army, or in commemoration of military events, the burghmaster of Frankfurt has ordered a memorial tablet to be affixed at No. 8 Heister street, where Prof. Friedrich Heinrich Rausenberger, constructor of "Big Bertha," the gun which shelled Paris during the World war, was born. Rausenberger died in 1926.

Find Spanish Coins of 1648 in Oregon

Mohler, Ore.—August Grab dug up 12 Spanish coins on his dairy ranch, all dated around 1648 and stamped with the head of Queen Isabella.

The find revived interest in an Indian legend that a Spanish galleon once was wrecked on the Nehalem coast during a fight with pirates and a fabulous treasure was buried somewhere on Neah-Kah-Nie mountain.

The mountains in myth with the glimpse of fabled treasure hunters, but some have found the chest, although several have lost their lives looking for it.

GET "SUCKER LISTS" FROM TAX RETURNS

Names of $15,000 a Year Earners Published by U. S.

Washington.—For a few dollars anyone can buy a list of all persons in the United States who received a salary of $15,000 or above in 1934.

Because a federal law made these salaries public, a regular business of compiling lists and offering them for sale has sprung up in the capital.

Congressmen who clamored for the publicity provision in the 1934 revenue act were astonished over the outcome of their handiwork.

Lists of persons known to have plenty of money and which are sold to promoters and salesmen are known in business slang as "sucker lists." Generally they are sold at so much per hundred or thousand names.

One firm is asking $50 for the government's big salary list. Others are breaking down the list by states and selling it piece-meal.

The list, made public about three months ago, contains over 15,000 names and with every state in the Union listed. Various portions were published in newspapers but thousands of names never have been revealed.

Slick salesmen and promoters are glad to pay for the names of these obscure, but highly paid persons. They offer a fertile field for various "get-rich-quick" enterprises.

Even those who sponsored the $15,000 salary publicly admit they did not intend the information to be peddled as a "sucker list."

Already an undercurrent of resentment has developed and there is talk of repealing the provision.

Representative Bacon, New York Republican, declared he had received a circular letter from a firm offering to sell the list. The latter said the names were offered to a "selected group of high type clients for use of their sales departments," Bacon said. He added:

"Although this letter offered the list to respectable manufacturers, there is nothing to prevent others from selling the list to racketeers and gangsters."

Art Use of Gold Rises

Despite High U. S. Cost

New York.—The United States, with the largest gold reserve in the world, continues to lead all other countries by a wide margin in the industrial consumption of the yellow metal.

Last year $14,232,733 worth of gold was used in the arts and sciences, or 30 per cent of the entire world consumption. The next largest consumer was Great Britain, which used $1,500,000 worth of the precious metal. During the year gold valued at $95,939,710 was mined in the United States.

The use of gold for jewelry and decorative purposes is increasing, according to Handy and Harman, while new uses are constantly being found for the precious metal in science and industry. Despite the cost of gold it is found indispensable for many purposes. Most of the gold consumed goes into the making of jewelry. Yellow gold, or the gold which looks like gold, again has become popular, replacing much of the white gold, green gold, and other forms.

Napoleon's Trunk Given to Museum in Saxon Town

Dresden.—A trunk left in the Rackwitz family palace at Dresden by Napoleon I in 1812 has been presented to the historical museum at the Saxon town of Leisnig-on-the-Mulde, where it is now placed on show.

Absent-minded though Bonaparte might be in some ways, in others he left nothing to chance; for the trunk has no fewer than 22 compartments, besides secret drawers.

The Rackwitz's housekeeper, Franzela Franzel, was presented with the trunk for having cared for the great Napoleon. It passed as an heirloom through many hands till it was established in Mildenstein castle, where Leisnig's museum is now accommodated.

Study the Strange Habits of Carrier Indian Tribe

Vancouver, B. C.—The habits and customs of the Carrier Indians—so called because the women of the tribe carried the ashes of their late husbands about with them—are being studied under the auspices of the Social Science Research Council of the University of Columbia. The work is being carried out by Irving Goldman. At Alzatchko, 210 miles west of Quebec, Goldman met an Indian who had seen Sir Alexander Mackenzie on the memorable journey he made by land in 1792. From similar types Goldman has been able to collect a vast amount of data about the earlier habits of the Carrier Indians.

Use of Rockets Forecast in Meteorological Study

Princeton, Calif.—The use of rockets in the future to gather meteorological data in the stratosphere has been predicted by the California Institute of Technology.

Balloons, now released throughout the United States, rarely rise above 20 miles, and the rockets are being studied for the purpose of reaching still higher altitudes.

Recognize Identity of Lynx, France.—Newspaper identification for race horses on the same principle as fingerprints for human beings is being tried here, with the object of preventing well-known horses from being disguised and run under assumed names.

ADVERTISE IN THE FREEMAN AND REAP THE REWARDS.

Townsend May Have Candidate of His Own

Philadelphia, June 25 (AP).—Dr. Francis E. Townsend intimates tonight that his old age pension movement may launch out soon with a presidential candidate of its own. A decision on this, as well as on the Townsends' attitude toward Congressman Lemke's new Union League, will be reached at a convention July 15-19 in Cleveland, Dr. Townsend said.

Branding the Democrats' meeting as "only a lot of smoke and noise," Townsend said that "if you could get at the heart of half the people at the convention you would find that they are in sympathy with Al Smith and the four other anti-New Dealers who asked the convention to abandon President Roosevelt."

It is "impossible," Townsend said, that any support from his $200-million organization will go to the Democrats "because we are not having anything to do with a party built upon bad faith, as this one is."

Townsend said he would "not be interested at all" in the Lemke movement unless delegates to the Cleveland convention manifest "a profound interest."

On The Radio Day By Day

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

Time Is Daylight Saving.

New York, June 25 (AP).—The networks have decided to start broadcasting of the Democratic National Convention from Philadelphia on Saturday night a half-hour earlier than originally scheduled. This will bring them on at 8:30 instead of 9. The extra half-hour will consist primarily of a concert by the Philadelphia Orchestra under the direction of Charles O'Connell.

Acceptance speeches of the nominees of the Communist party convention, held in Madison Square Garden, New York, will go on the air Sunday afternoon at 5. WJZ-NBC will broadcast for an hour and WABC-CBS for a half-hour. Topic selected for the fourth of WJZ-NBC Friday morning is "Roads to Peace."

Like he did in 1935, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau is to summarize for the microphone the fiscal year just ending. The talk, originating in his office at Washington, is listed for next Wednesday night at 8:45 via WJZ-NBC.

TRY THESE TONIGHT (THURSDAY):

Democratic Convention—Night session scheduled for 8:30, all networks' comment (subject to change and addition). WJZ-NBC 7:45, WABC-CBS 7:45, WMCA-Intercity 12. WJZ-NBC 7:15, Voice of Experience; 8, Rudy Vallee Program; 12, Henry Huesbeck Orchestra.

46 Students Are Graduated From Highland High School Tuesday

Highland, June 25—Diplomas were given to 46 graduates from Highland High School at the commencement exercises Tuesday evening in the Methodist Church. The auditorium was comfortably filled with the relatives and friends of the class. The faculty in black gowns occupied the choir loft. Mrs. Jesse D. Rose, president of the Board of Education, Andrew W. Lent, clerk of the Board, the speaker, Daniel V. McNamie, Jr., Principal, Daniel V. Campbell and the salutatorian, Martin Lucille Cusumano, valedictorian, Angelo Phillips, were on the platform and just below them sat the graduates in grey gowns.

Mr. McNamie, who has just been graduated from Yale, reminded the graduates that they were like sailors at sea, the sea of life, that every day was like a step in a staircase. He said many people might ask why Latin and geometry were necessary to obtain positions, but he proved that knowledge and how to use it meant achievement, though real achievement was a slow growth. It was the more precious. He reminded his hearers that the future of the United States was theirs and that patriotic ambition should be fostered.

Mrs. Rose Speaks
Mrs. Rose in presenting the diplomas said: "To us who have grey hair years pass very quickly, but to a group of young women and men, high school students, ages ranging from 15 to 20 years, one year is a long wait, plenty of work, plenty of strain, plenty of anxiety, especially seniors, until June and graduation comes."

As an educator of many years I have reached the age when one may feel that a few lessons have been learned by experience. Although it must be admitted that each person has to learn for himself, still a traveler who has picked his way through a dark and dangerous wood make a few suggestions to inexperienced fellow travelers who are just starting on this path. This dangerous world has so many voices calling. Where shall one follow? During their school life, teachers and members of the Board of Education have admonished these young people not to listen to the tempting flattery voice that calls toward self-exploitation, and that other loud voice that says so sweetly of comfort and ease that money brings. To these young women and men I would say—turn a deaf ear to such voices. As a true friend I will say to them: The road to self-development is bound to be hard and only vigorous effort avails. Tonight 46 graduates are about to step out into the world. Until now this act of stepping out has seemed too far away to consider seriously. Now the time is here.

you enter this untied world register confidence not fear. Do not demand that the world give you everything you want, that is arrogance rather than confidence. Whatever degree of usefulness you attain and achieve therein, a full, glad useful life, you will show your gratitude to your parents, Highland High, to your instructors and all others who have made this graduation possible. Remember the parting benediction of teachers, the beautiful thoughts of the baccalaureate sermon and these impressive commencement exercises and you cannot fail altogether."

Swimming Meet At Williams Lake

A number of nationally known swimming and diving stars as well as Ulster county's best swimmers have entered the swimming and diving championships sponsored by the Amateur Athletic Union scheduled at Williams Lake in Rosendale this Sunday afternoon. The aquatic program is in connection with the official opening of the new modern bath house constructed there.

Heading the list of the world famous swimmers entered are Walter and Leonard Spence of the New York Athletic Club. Walter, a veteran of two Olympics, and Leonard, mainstay of the present Bermuda Olympic Swimming Team, will swim a series of special match races against each other this Sunday. Their first race will be in the 100 yard free style and Walter, who holds the national intercollegiate record and the Williams Lake course record for this event, is favored to win. Leonard is favored to win the 100 yard breast stroke race and to lower the Williams Lake course record of one minute seven seconds set by Paul Fricel of the Brooklyn Dragon Club last summer. If each should win one of these races, they will swim a 150 yard medley race, including 50 yard breast stroke, 50 yard back stroke and 50 yard free style, to decide supremacy.

William K. Kraft, Jr., son of Postmaster Kraft, is one of the favorites in the 50 yard free style race open to Ulster county men only. He will be hard pressed, however, by Otto Valentin and Bob Winkler of New Paltz Normal School who have turned in good times in practice.

OLYMPIC OUTLOOK

The 'Ebony Epoch' of Foot Racing Destined to Encompass Olympiad

JESSE OWENS

RALPH METCALFE

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

New York (AP)—The streaking shadows of the Olympic straight-aways four years ago at Los Angeles marked not only the return of sprint supremacy to the United States, but the beginning of an ebony epoch.

The American negro's ascendancy, gained by the twin triumphs of Michigan's bespectacled little Eddie Tolan in the Tenth Olympiad, with dusky Ralph Metcalfe of Marquette in pursuit, has now become firmly established. The white boys of today are no more a match for their coffee-colored rivals in sprinting than the pale-faces of frontier days were in their attempts to outrun the redskins.

Owens May Succeed Tolan
There may be many a slip between now and the first week of August in Berlin but it's conceivable 1-2-3 in the Olympic dashes. If dusky Eulace Peacock of Temple, national champion, recovers fully from a pulled tendon, they may make it 1-2-3 in the classic 100 meters for the U. S. A.

Peacock last year beat Europe's best with monotonous ease but our two top spitting bets now are Jesse Owens, the great Ohio State athlete, and Metcalfe, 200-meter national champion for the past four years. Rated off his spring form, Owens has a good chance to duplicate Tolan's double. He has equaled the world record of 9.4 seconds for 100 yards on two occasions. The veteran Metcalfe, conditioning himself slowly for the Olympics, is more powerfully built and favored by a majority of coaches to show peak form in Berlin.

In 1932 Metcalfe, then just a college sophomore, lost an eyelash decision to Tolan in the closest 100-meter finish in Olympic history. He ran third to Tolan and George Simpson of Ohio State in the 200 Tolan subsequently turned professional. Simpson has retired.

Uncle Sam Seems Safe
Thus, barring mishap or the comet-like rush of a Percy Williams to the fore, there appears nothing for Uncle Sam to worry about in this year's Olympic dashes. Williams, the slim Canadian, was the first and only sprinter to administer a coat of whitewash to the Americans. He did it in 1928, the year that marked the low ebb in this country's Olympic foot-racing fortunes. Frank Wykoff's fourth place in the 100 and Jackson Scholz's third in the 200 were our best at Amsterdam.

Tolan set new Olympic records in both dashes four years ago but his marks may take a beating from the double-barreled attack of Owens and Metcalfe. Owens raced the 220 in 20.3 seconds last year. Metcalfe shares the listed world mark of 20.6 for the 200 meters as well as the standard of 10.3 for the metric century.

Whereas speedy sons of the British Empire alone have interrupted America's Olympic sprint conquests heretofore, it appears the strongest opposition this year may come from Germany, Switzerland or Japan. Arthur Jonath of Germany was the only real foreign threat to the Americans four years ago. The Swiss, Haenni, and Japan's Yoshioka, rate chances to score, at least, in Berlin.

Abstract

Jacobson Employees Hear Cutting Dept. Is Coming Back Here

Workers at the F. Jacobson & Sons shirt factory, Cornell street and Smith avenues, today talked among themselves about the cutting department being brought back from Troy to the Kingston factory.

The cutting department, which employed about 20 people, according to several who worked in it prior to its removal, was taken from Kingston to Troy about three months ago. A reporter called at the local Jacobson plant this afternoon to find out about the department coming back.

"We have nothing definite to say at this time," he was told by one of the office staff. "Sam Jacobson is in New York and we will not be prepared to make an announcement until he returns." It was not known when he would be back in his Kingston office.

Several men formerly employed in the cutting department told friends in the factory that they had been notified to return to work next Monday morning. The business office of the factory was not prepared to verify this.

Man Is Guilted.
Paris, June 25 (AP)—Arthur Mathieu, 33, convicted of slaying a policeman, died by the guillotine at dawn today at the first public execution in nearly four years. Streets were roped off to keep all but 30 witnesses and officials from the guillotine. In a black wagon drawn by black horses, the condemned man was brought from the prison under police guard. Quickly, he was escorted up the steps where Executioner Anatole Delbier, wearing a derby and waiting. Witnesses and police lifted their hats as the blade dropped.

Landons in Denver On Vacation Trip

Denver, June 25 (AP)—Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, Republican presidential nominee, arrived in Denver with his family today to start his Colorado vacation.

A cheer went up from the large crowd at the Denver station as the train, smiling, and waving.

Nearly two cars were waiting, an open one for the governor and a closed one for his family.

The Republican committee planned for Landon to ride in the open car, enroute to Estes Park, 75 miles north of Denver, where the Landons have leased a ranch for the summer.

Long anticipated, the trip was the occasion of the first train ride for Landon's children, Nancy Jo, almost 4, and "Jack" 2 1/2, and the two youngsters took a full measure of fun from it.

Thousands gathered at stations along the way last night and the governor came out and greeted each crowd.

The 10-day stay will be his first vacation of that length in three years. He expects to spend the time fishing, writing and reading.

Crowds greeted the party at Salina, Kas., Manhattan and Junction City.

The children edged to the platform when the train reached Manhattan. When the governor started shaking hands, Nancy Jo timidly offered hers. A greeter saw it, laughed, and they shook hands just like grownups. Jack caught on quickly and he, too, was soon shaking hands all around.

Rogers Boy Has Nail Taken from Lung in 7-Minute Operation

Philadelphia, June 25 (AP)—A nail lodged in the lung of Kevin Rogers for 18 months was removed at Temple University Hospital today, less than 24 hours after he arrived from Australia.

The lad, who made the 8,000-mile journey with his mother, was "doing nicely," the hospital said. Removal of the three-inch wire nail through a bronchoscope required seven minutes.

The operation was performed in the clinic of Dr. Chevalier Jackson, famed inventor of the perfected bronchoscope, but the hospital, issuing a statement "by the administration," did not say who performed it.

The statement: "Kevin Rogers of Australia was admitted to Temple University Hospital Wednesday afternoon. This morning a three-inch wire nail was removed from his right lung by the use of a bronchoscope. The operation required seven minutes. The patient is doing nicely."

Private Inquiry
Pittsburgh, June 25 (AP)—Two detectives from New York city began a private inquiry today into the deaths of Mrs. Eleanor Feely, wife of a University of Pittsburgh instructor, and her two children. They did not disclose who had engaged them but made a thorough study of the mysterious case from the time a scarlet fever sign was taken from the Feely apartment on June 17, the day before Mrs. Feely and her children were found strangled. Martin J. Feely, the husband, and relatives of Mrs. Feely, have refused to accept the police theory the mother lost her mind and killed her five-year-old boy and three-year-old girl and herself.

Freedom of Passage Sought.
Montreux, Switzerland, June 25 (AP)—Foreign Commissioner Maxim Litvinov of Russia announced today the Soviet Union wants freedom of passage through the Dardanelles for her warships in the Black Sea's naval base in various seas. His announcement, expressed to the International Dardanelles Conference, was regarded as a warning that Russia, as a mighty nation, considers her interests in Europe and Asia vital.

The Quantum Theory
The quantum theory is briefly defined by Webster as follows: "To the emission or absorption of energy by atoms or molecules, the process is not continuous but takes place by steps, each step being the emission or absorption of an amount of energy called the quantum." Depending on frequency associated with the atom or molecule and on another factor called Planck's constant.

Generally speaking, we believe those Civil War veterans, but we doubt about the old boys who tell of a battle where "you couldn't see the enemy for bullets."

Entire Ulster County Road Program Is Approved by State

The county road program as adopted by the Board of Supervisors has been approved and work has been started on practically all projects under the direction of County Superintendent of Highways James F. Loughran. Following the adoption of the program for construction during the current season the program was submitted to the State Department at Albany for approval. At that time objection was made to two of the projects by the supervisors of the respective towns. That objection was made to one project in Wawarsing, the so-called Ulster Heights-Sullivan county road and to one in Kingston on the Sawkill-Zena road.

With the exception of these two projects the entire program was immediately approved by the State Department and approval was withheld for a time on the two projects which had been protested while an investigation was made by the State Department. Both of these projects were later approved, official approval being given about two weeks ago, so that for the first time in several years the entire road construction program of the county has been approved by the state without objection. The approval of the department was without comment in regard to the two projects upon which there was opposition by the supervisors.

Work on the Sawkill-Zena route was to be commenced today and work has already been started on most of the other projects. Opposition was made by the supervisor from Kingston to the road selected by the board on the grounds that work remaining to be done on the Sawkill-Zena route was practically all in the town of Woodstock and that practically none was in the town of Kingston. At the time it was proposed that the men employed on this route be proportioned between the two towns so both would receive the work benefit. Completion of the road was recommended on the grounds that if the state begins work on the Kingston-West Hurley route the Sawkill-Zena road should be completed to provide a good detour for mountain traffic.

When work is commenced on improvements to route 28 the county road through Sawkill and Zena will connect with the Woodstock-Saugerties road and provide a good detour by way of Bearsville and Willow to Mt. Tremper where traffic may again meet 28. From Woodstock there is also a connecting link to the Ashokan boulevard.

The Board of Supervisors in recommending that the Zena-Sawkill route be completed this year had in mind the convenience of the public in the event the state begins improvement of the plank road next year.

The number of men at work on the county road system is being increased as rapidly as possible consistent with economy and necessity and when all projects are under way employment will be given to a considerable number from each town of the county.

LaGuardia Contests J. P. Morgan Library On Tax-Free Status

New York, June 25 (AP).—An argument between Mayor F. H. LaGuardia and the J. P. Morgan family on whether the Pierpont Morgan Library is a public institution and tax-free—as the Morgans contend—was headed today for a court decision.

The library, housing millions of dollars worth of valuable manuscripts, including Dickens' autographed "A Christmas Carol," was ordered by the mayor in October, 1934, to be placed on the 1935 tax roll.

The white marble structure next door to the J. P. Morgan town house in East 36th street, together with the land on which it stands, was assessed at $1,665,000 which would yield the city about $60,000 yearly taxes.

Ten years before, however, the institution had been declared tax exempt by a legislative act.

Appealing yesterday to the Supreme Court for a review of the findings by the board of taxes and assessments, Henry Sturges Morgan, son of the banker, and treasurer of the library, said the institution is open without charge "to all duly accredited persons, rich or poor, scholarly or non-scholarly, who can show satisfactory proof that they are working or have worked in connection with some institution of learning."

Justice John L. Walsh granted

Morgan's petition, leaving a writ requiring the assessment board to submit its findings, returnable September 26.

The library, founded by the elder J. P. Morgan, who died in 1913, also houses one of the earliest printed Bibles, the Ashburnham Gospels done in the ninth century in a Swiss monastery; all that is extant of Thackeray's manuscript of "Vanity Fair," Shakespeare's folios, and autographed manuscripts of Scott's "Lady of the Lake."
